PARTY REVOLT GROWS; GRIP OF PRESIDENT SLIPS

Conservatives Unite to Halt Fear.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Public reaction to the President's acts and utterances in dealing with critical conditions at home and abroad reveals a widespread and increasing distrust and fear of the Roosevelt administration as the custodian of the nation's welfare.

This fear and distrust is being manifested in the current conferences of business and labor leaders with Mr. Roosevelt on ways and means of checking the present severe business recession that is fast taking on the proportions of a major depression.

Money Sleeps in Banks.

It is being manifested in the banks overflowing with the savings of millions of investors who prefer the apparent safety of government insurance of bank deposits to the risk of loss in private enterprise under a régime antagonistic to the profit motive.

It is being manifested outspokenly in congress in the consideration of legislation on domestic, economic, and foreign policies. Democrats in increasing number are evincing doubts of the soundness of the Roosevelt economic innovations and giving vent to opinions that the President is confused and bewildered and beginning to rock the boat with threats of even more radical legislation, such as his proposal to abolish all holding companies constituting half the industrial structure of the country.

Fear Roosevelt Régime.

When he was able to ascribe the 1933 panic to the Hoover administration the President in his first inaugural said that "there is nothing to fear but fear itself." Now the fear that grips business men and investors is being attributed to the Roosevelt administration.

The dissatisfaction with the Roosevelt leadership that has split the overwhelming Democratic majority in congress suggests that unless the President is able to restore confidence in his administration in his forthcoming special message on economic problems, a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats will attempt to sidetrack the executive and undertake the appeasement of public uncertainty and apprehension.

On Trial Before Public Opinion.

With unemployment again touching the level of 1933, when the President took office, Mr. Roosevelt is definitly on trial at the bar of public opinion, and with the congressional elections coming on apace the Democratic majority in congress soon will be on trial, too. Already on the eve of the primaries, administration Democrats, fearful of defeat, are scrambling to dissociate themselves from the soak-the-rich taxes, government ownership and other Roosevelt policies to which business men are attributing the new depression.

Fear and distrust of Roosevelt foreign policies that might involve the country in war was an important factor in the movement supporting the Ludlow war referendum resolution which the administration by a supreme effort was able to defeat last week by only a handful of votes.

Distrust Foreign Policy.

This distrust of Mr. Roosevelt's inclinations in foreign policy was the fundamental reason for the rigid neutrality law congress enacted under which the President was deprived of the discretion he sought to coöperate with the league of nations in punishing Italy for aggression on Ethiopia. The distrust was deepened when in disregard of the law's limitations he sought to coöperate with the league by stopping shipments of oil to Italy, desisting only when truculent Mussolini proclaimed Mr. Roosevelt's course the sort of unfriendly act that leads to war.

With the Roosevelt administration forced increasingly upon the defensive, first by the signal repudiation of the President by his own party in his attempt to pack the Supreme court, next by his elevation of radical Senator Hugo Black, a former Ku Klux Klansman, to the court, and finally by the business slump, the administration course in dealing with the wars in Spain and China has been

48 U. S. Book Publishers Refuse to Go to Leipzig

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Forty-eight of the leading book publishers of this country made public today a signed declaration of their intention not to attend the International Congress of Book Publishers in Leipzig this year. "In Germany," says the declaration, "the book trade is gagged, as is the newspaper press. No German publisher will dare, at Leipzig, to express opinions other than those dictated by the national socialist officials."

CALL LEON BLUM TO SAVE FRENCH POPULAR FRONT

Proposes Cabinet of Many Parties.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 16.—After the collapse of the efforts of Georges Bonnet to form a "save the franc" cabinet, Leon Blum, Socialist leader who headed France's first Popular Front government [in June, 1936], obtained authorization tonight from President Albert Lebrun to attempt to form an enlarged Popular Front cabinet. It would include communists and conservatives from the center parties as well.

Leon Blum.

The governmental formula suggested by Blum is without precedent in the Third Republic. At first political experts were inclined to laugh it off, but as Blum continued consultations throughout the evening, it became apparent that he has a chance of pulling it off.

Unions Promise Support.

Communist and trade union leaders, who hitherto had refused to participate in any government, apparently assured Blum of their support, and Paul Reynaud, former finance minister and one of the outstanding opposition leaders whom Blum would like to have as finance minister has intimated that he will take the job if other right wingers will enter the cabinet.

The success of Blum's audacious scheme depends on the attitude of the Radical Socialists, the biggest party after the Socialists in the chamber. While the orthodox Radical leaders are privately furious over Blum's proposal, they do not feel they can afford to reject it flatly. The Radical party caucus tonight decided, after a two hour debate, to ask Blum for more precise indications of his proposed governmental program and to take a final decision tomorrow after they have his answer.

Reds Want Three Ministries.

The Radicals are reported to have placed two absolute conditions on their coöperation—a pledge to maintain monetary liberty, and a policy of nonintervention in the Spanish civil war. They also are dubious about letting communists into the government at this moment, particularly as the communists are reported to be asking for three ministries.

Blum called on President Lebrun at Elysee palace after Bonnet quit because of the failure of his own party to support him. The Radical group endorsed his proposed cabinet by a small majority, but nearly half the members abstained from the vote.

Bonnet advised Lebrun to call Blum. Blum startled Lebrun by proposing a cabinet stretching from communists on the left to the far-right, and under the premiership of Edouard Herriot.

Herriot, however, refused to act, so Blum offered to undertake the job himself. Consultations with Herriot and the retiring premier, Camille Chautemps, left him with the feeling that he had a fighting chance.

Uncover Cagoulards' Arms.

One of the factors working in favor of the Popular Front, and therefore in favor of Blum, is the growing public reaction to the Cagoulard [hooded ones'] plot [said by the police to be a conspiracy of Fascists and monarchists to overthrow the government] which tends to make the slogan "save the republic" cabinet as appealing as "save the franc."

The Cagoulard investigation today included the discovery of a big arms depot in Rue Saint Lazare not far from the railway station.

Police, on breaking into an unoccupied apartment, found twenty-two cases of hand grenades, three machine guns, eighteen submachine guns of the Schmesser [German] type, eighteen Mauser rifles, and 20,000 cartridges. Military experts declared there was enough armament for a battalion of 500 men.

The press increasingly has been asking what was the source of the Cagoulards' finances. Even the left press admits that they had a substantial fraction of French money.

QUERY OF A FELLOW WHO HAS JUST BROKEN THE ICE

O, Man! Here's a Story That'll Curl Your Hair

BY MARCIA WINN.

You hear much chatter around town about women invading the sacrosanct precincts of men. Now, however, the talk is reversed, with men invading women's beauty salons for [Of all things!] permanent waves.

The managers of beauty salons in two of Chicago's largest hotels admitted yesterday that men not only are frequent customers but that they are better customers than women in that they are patient and silent under the affliction of the wave machine.

Elderly men have permanent waves, the operators say, to create an illusion of youth. Short men have them create an illusion of height. Men with thinning hair have them to give body to their hair. And boys in preparatory schools have finger waves in emulation of that great Hollywood lover, Robert Taylor.

Doctor with Snow White Hair.

"They come right in during regular hours," the manager of one shop said. "They don't mind anything. We get all types. We've given several permanents to a doctor with snow white hair. He goes without a hat all the time. That's his principal reason for having it done. The curl keeps his hair in place."

It generally takes an hour to give a man a permanent, and the cost begins at $7.50. The price rises according to the number of curls, and the wave stays in from four to six months. Most men get a croquinole wave [rather than a spiral], one in which the curl starts from the ends up.

"But it's a much more difficult permanent to give than for a woman," the manager explained, "because of the short hair. Then, too, you have to do the hair so it blends with the hair that is straight and too short to curl."

12 Regular Customers.

Another manager said she has about twelve regular customers. She classified them as [1] theatrical men, [2] men in public life, [3] small men who want to look tall, [4] men whose hair has been straightened by sickness and wish to look "natural" again, and [5] "those who just have a lot of vanity."

"A man who will have a permanent," this manager said, "doesn't mind anything! If coming into a women's beauty shop doesn't embarrass him, what's a little matter like sitting under a wave machine?"

And some, she added, are so hardened that they even come back to have their waves set!

A PICKET PICKETS PICKET, BUT FAILS TO EMBARRASS HIM

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Mrs. Anthony Sarkis, owner of a linoleum firm, was irked when the union placed a picket on duty in front of her store. So she hired her own picket to picket the picket. All day yesterday a buxom Negro woman, wearing a bright flowered dress and red checked smock and carrying a large bouquet of flowers and a just married sign walked placidly beside the man, who carried an umbrella for the Linoleum Layers' union, but he was unembarrassed.

FAMILY SPENDS A BLACK HOUR IN A GRAVEYARD

A mother and her two daughters were locked for an hour and a half in Mount Hope cemetery at 115th street and Fairfield avenue last night. The cemetery prisoners were Mrs. Johannah Lauferski, 1506 West 61st street; Miss Ruth Lauferski, a secretary, and Dorlene, 8 years old. They had driven into the cemetery to visit the grave of a relative. Unknown to them, the gates were locked at 5 o'clock, when it was already dark.

Mrs. Lauferski and the girls screamed for help and sounded the horn of their car. Automobiles passed in 115th street without response. Several added speed when they saw the figures among the tombstones. One brave motorist finally stopped, and notified the cemetery keeper to open the gates.

"It was the longest hour and a half I ever spent anywhere," said Miss Lauferski.

Egypt's Pickpockets Order Holiday When King Weds

CAIRO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Egypt's pickpockets today declared a moratorium on "lifting" during the celebrations of the wedding of King Farouk and Farida Zulfikar Jan. 20. One of Cairo's most notorious pickpockets, who has been convicted numerous times, made the pledge for himself and colleagues in a letter to a newspaper. The police hailed the pledge with cheers. Egypt's pickpockets are among the world's most skilful.

East Indian Sailors Call Sitdown on British Ship

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 16.—(AP)—East Indian sailors on the British freighter Magdapur retired to their quarters in a perfectly legal sit down as the ship came up Chesapeake bay. Indian law provides they don't have to work north of 36 degrees, north latitude. The cold hurts their health. British crew members take over.

Red 'Treasure Island' Sexy; Fire Film Man

MOSCOW, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Boris Shumiatsky was disclosed today to have been removed as head of the soviet motion picture industry partly because of efforts to inject political propaganda and sex interest in a production of "Treasure Island."

The newspaper Soviet Art said Shumiatsky, long under fire for extravagance and failure to fulfill production schedules, had met with poor success in giving political touches to the Robert Louis Stevenson adventure classic.

The producers also were criticized for introducing the sex element into an almost completely masculine story by transforming cabin boy Jim Hawkins into a girl—Jenny Hawkins.

They had hoped to get the Austrian actress Francesca Gaal, whose film "Peter" was successful here, for the rôle of Jenny. Finally, however, the producers engaged a Russian girl who appeared in the pirate scenes with romantic songs of high life which also displeased the newspaper.

Political Theories Wrong.

Soviet Art accused the producers of trying to give political significance to a "bourgeois adventure story" by introducing the Irish revolutionary movement.

But the newspaper found the revolutionary movement only had been compromised by showing the Irish rebels as adventurers. If the producers had to drag in politics, Soviet Art said, they should have read the letter Karl Marx wrote in 1869 on the Irish situation.

The enthusiasm with which the pirate scenes were made was criticized by the newspaper, which said the queues of children who lined up at the doors of theaters displaying the film "ought to worry any pedagogue."

Planned Russian Hollywood.

A week ago Pravda, organ of the communist party, declared Shumiatsky's "shameful leadership has resulted in a lack of art in soviet films."

Seized as They Clamber Over Wall of Prison

Tying ladders together with belts, five convicts made a desperate attempt to escape from Joliet penitentiary yesterday after they had overpowered and bound a keeper. Gunfire from a watch tower brought two of the felons down wounded. Although four scaled the 22 foot wall, all five were captured and locked up within a few minutes after the prison break began.

Joseph Ragen.

Twenty-two other prisoners in the laundry, where the dash for liberty began, watched without joining it.

Prison officials said the attempted escape was led by Donald Loftus, 36, a bank robber sentenced from McHenry county, who was shot in the shoulder as he fled in Collins street [route 4A].

Others Are Named.

The others:

HARRY GERKEN, 28, serving a thirty year sentence imposed in Peoria county for murder. He was shot in the leg as he reached the top of the wall.

PETER RISTICH, sentenced from Cook county to life imprisonment as a burglar and habitual criminal.

WILLIAM YOHO, 27, sentenced to four consecutive one year to life sentences from Vermillion county for robbery.

EDWARD BABALAIS, 34, another Cook county criminal serving one year to life for robbery.

According to Superintendent of Prisons Joseph Ragen, who was in charge at nearby Stateville prison during the break, 27 prisoners were at work in the laundry when one approached Keeper Edward Monahan of Champaign on the pretext of trading trousers with another convict. Suddenly the felon leaped upon Monahan. Four others joined the attack.

Keeper Bound and Gagged.

The keeper's hands were bound with an electric iron cord. Trouser belts were fastened about his feet, and clothing was stuffed into his mouth as a gag.

Four five-foot ladders kept in the laundry were quickly tied together with more belts. With these, the prisoners raced 100 yards to the east wall, parallel with Collins street. They were sheltered from the view of guards in all but the last 25 feet of the dash.

Ristich was first over the wall, but he sprained his ankle when he leaped into Collins street and was forced to halt. Yoho landed safely and ran south.

Loftus reached the street in safety, but fell a moment later when Guard Thomas Shaw opened fire from the south tower.

Gerken had reached the top of the wall when he was struck by another of Shaw's bullets. The felon remained

JAPANESE SEEK WORLD O. K. FOR POLICY IN CHINA

Takes Full Burden of 'Peace in Asia.'

Chinese Reds Rout Japs

SHANGHAI—Chinese Red troops inflict heavy losses on Japanese in battle in Shansi province; Japanese reported retreating; United States cruiser Marblehead dashes from Tsingtao to Chefoo to protect 32 Americans endangered by disorders. Page 2.

TOKIO, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Japan was reported today to be carrying out a major readjustment of her diplomatic policy toward the United States and other world powers along the lines of her proclaimed objective—"pacification" of eastern Asia.

The foreign ministry was said to have issued a circular cablegram to Japanese diplomats instructing them tc explain Japan's intentions in the war on China.

These were outlined earlier in the day by a government announcement of withdrawal of recognition from the central Chinese [Hankow] régime. It said "Japan's responsibilities for peace in east Asia now are even heavier than before."

Diplomatic observers said Japan intended to realign her foreign relations with America, Great Britain, Germany, Italy, and the soviet union in keeping with her "unshakeable" aim to dominate China.

Will Recall Envoy from China.

Foreign Minister Koki Hirota, it was said, had decided to recall the ambassador to China, Shigeru Kawagoe, from his provisional headquarters at Shanghai as an immediate step in implementing the new policy.

[The formal withdrawal of recognition implied such a step. A dispatch from Shanghai said the Japanese announcement simply confirmed what for some time had been the Japanese relations with the central Chinese government. The announcement was construed at Shanghai as the expression of an intention to deal with the provisional government of North China, the Japanese dominated Peking [Peiping] régime, as the real Chinese government.

Domei [the Japanese news agency] in reporting the diplomatic maneuvering, said the foreign minister had seen the German and Italian ambassadors to Tokio in order to express Japan's appreciation of the friendship of their governments.

Hirota did not talk with United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew nor the envoys of other powers, Domei reported. [Japan is linked with Germany and Italy in a pact against international communism.]

Believe Conflict Will Be Long.

The news agency said Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe planned to go before parliament to clarify Japan's new China policy and to urge the nation vigorously to face a probably long conflict.

Another development, not apparently of direct connection with the formulation of new policy, was the issuance by the foreign office spokesman of a list of numerous annoyances of Japanese consular authorities in Siberia.

Parliamentary members of the league on China gathered at the diet [parliament] building and adopted a resolution urging the government to petition Emperor Hirohito to declare war on China and to adopt measures to "exterminate" the present anti-Japanese régime in China.

Hachisaburo Hirao, who was education minister in the former Hirota cabinet, informally accepted appointment as supreme adviser to the Peking government, the newspaper Yomiuri said. He is a prominent industrialist and his duties would be both political and financial.

Look Forward to Harmony.

The government announcement did not mention the Peking régime, but said Japan looked forward "to the establishment and growth of a new régime, harmonious coördination with which can really be counted upon."

"With such a régime they [Japan] will coöperate fully for adjustment of Chinese-Japanese relations and for the upbuilding of a rejuvenated China.

"Needless to state this involves no change in the policy adopted by the

...e government of respecting the territorial integrity and sovereignty of China as well as the rights and interests of other powers in China. . . ."

Japanese Goods Exempted.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Foreign importers in this Japanese dominated trade gateway to China pressed for action from their own governments today in the fear that duty free Japanese goods would wreck their markets.

Japanese and other shippers announced they would resume commerce with Shanghai in the immediate future but as the customs situation stood today all but Japanese importers would be compelled to observe the usual regulations to pay duties.

Foreign officials, however, expected a Japanese announcement within a few days on the future of the customs administration, despite the fact that negotiations here between Japanese and foreign consuls and customs officials remained deadlocked and the status of similar talks at Tokio were undisclosed.

Control North China Customs.

Some observers expected the Japanese controled provisional government at Peking, already having taken over North China and Tsingtao customs, to move toward control of the port of Shanghai which normally handles 40 per cent of China's trade.

What application today's official announcement in Tokio of the withdrawal of recognition from the central Chinese government might have to the situation remained to be seen.

Japan's ambassador to China and his staf long ago withdrew from Nanking and since then have been functioning at Shanghai, principally as a liaison between the Japanese army and navy and other powers. Japan has no consular representatives in territory still controled by the Chinese.

Steamship Service to Resume.

Foreign shipping companies were vitally interested in the prospects of competition with the Japanese since the Canadian Pacific Line announced resumption of service within two weeks and the American owned Dollar Line was expected to start up early in February.

Dollar Line lighters were permitted to remove cargo from their Pootung wharves for the first time since the Japanese occupation of the Shanghai area early in November.

The apprehension of American and other business firms was heightened by the prospect of a flood of untaxed Japanese imports to be carried on new Japanese steamers placed in the Shanghai service.

The Asuka Maru, first of the new Nippon Yusen Kaisha [N. Y. K.], Ltd., freighters for the Japan-Shanghai trade route, was to arrive Tuesday while four others had been assigned to the same service "to cope with the current rush of goods to Shanghai."

5 DEAD, 40 HURT AS REBEL PLANES RAID VALENCIA

MADRID, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Five persons were killed and forty injured today in a daylight aerial raid on suburbs of Valencia. Insurgent planes also strafed numerous government-held coastal cities. A government communique said three insurgent bombers from Palma, Mallorca, attacked Burriana where the British freighter Silver Spray was anchored but that the ship escaped unscathed.

One insurgent bomber crashed into the sea after a trio of planes bombed Reus near Tarragona. The temporary Spanish capital, Barcelona, was raided last night but the extent of damage was not determined.

12 Killed in Week-End Gales Over British Isles

LONDON, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Gales which had buffeted the British Isles with hurricane force at times over the week-end subsided appreciably tonight, leaving at least ten persons dead and widespread property damage.

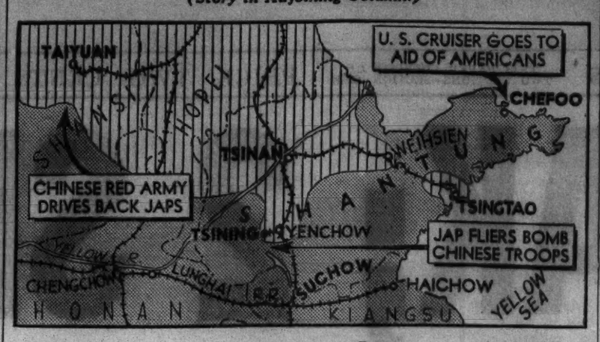
ALLAHBAD, India, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Seven persons were killed and fifteen injured today in a collision between the Calcutta-Delhi express and a freight train at Bamruali near here.

Japanese Defeated by Chinese Red Army

(Story in Adjoining Column.)



Shading in vertical lines represents Japanese occupied territory in North China. Japanese troops were reported yesterday to have retreated after heavy losses in a battle with Chinese Red troops 50 miles south of Taiyuan. Another Japanese force, aided by bombing planes, fought to advance from Tsining and Yenchow toward the important railway junction at Suchow. The United States cruiser Marblehead dashed from Tsingtao to Chefoo to protect 82 American residents after an outbreak of disorders.

COUNTESS NEAR 80 SAYS FILM OF ROYAL TRAGEDY IS UNTRUE

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—A film version of the tragic deaths of Crown Prince Rudolf, first son of Emperor Franz Josef, and the young and beautiful Baroness Vetsera in 1889 has brought a protest from Countess Larisch, Marie Louise Wallersee von Wittelsbach, to a motion picture executive.

Countess Larisch wrote to Michael Mindlin regarding a scene in the screen production "Mayerling," in which she is represented as introducing the lovers who later were found shot to death in the imperial hunting lodge near Vienna.

"Please permit me to denounce once more the historical untruth that I brought my cousin, Crown Prince Rudolf, and Marie Vetsera together," the letter reads. "They had met months before. I have fought for fifty years now to clear my name."

The letter was mailed from Munich, where the countess, now in her late 70s, lives.

American Countess to Seek Divorce from Irish Earl

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—The countess of Carrick, American wife of the Irish earl of Carrick, will start divorce proceedings against her husband, it was reported tonight. The couple were married in 1935. The countess, who is 35 years old, is the former Mrs. Marion C. Edwards of Philadelphia. She has a son by her present husband and three other children by a previous marriage.

SHIPPING TIEUP OF PORTO RICO ENTERS 3D WEEK

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 16.—With C. I. O. strike leaders charging steamship companies with a sitdown to provoke government intervention and company representatives alleging that longshoremen walked out, violating a verbal agreement to continue wage negotiations, Porto Rico enters the third week of an absolute cargo tieup. Not a single pound of freight has been discharged from or loaded on a steamer.

The Grace Line, Porto Rico Line, and Bull Lines, connecting with New York, all are affected as well as the Lykes Line and the Waterman Line, with headquarters in the gulf.

Ship owners' attitude is one of the greatest caution because all the lines involved are large operators from the Atlantic and gulf to many parts of the world and it is possible that action here easily might tie up the complete systems and between 150 and 200 freight and passenger ships flying the American flag.

Hotels in Sweden Closed as 20,000 Workers Strike

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A strike of 20,000 workers for higher wages and shorter hours closed all Swedish hotels today. Tourists began to look for accommodations in private houses. Parliament members, gathering for budgetary debates, also were forced to make private arrangements for meals as the parliament restaurant was among those closed.

BOY COASTER IS KILLED.

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Edward Murray, 7 years old, was killed yesterday when his sled struck a tree after a coast down an embankment near the Bronx River parkway. He died of a fractured skull.

ARMY OF CHINESE REDS ROUTS JAPS IN SHANSI BATTLE

Tokio Troops Flee After Heavy Losses.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 17 [Monday].—(AP)—The Chinese Eighth army, organized from once outlawed communist units to challenge Japan's North China conquest, was reported today to have inflicted heavy losses on the Japanese in central Shansi province.

Chinese sources said the Japanese attacked fifty miles south of the provincial capital, Taiyuan, but encountered strong opposition and were forced into a costly retreat.

The strength of the one time communist irregulars harassing the Japanese in North China has been estimated at 100,000 men, reported now under the command of Gen. Chu Teh, who gained a reputation as a military genius for his leadership of the communists.

Warship Protects Americans.

The United States cruiser Marblehead steamed into the North China port of Chefoo last night to protect the lives and property of fifty-five American adults and twenty-seven children after a Saturday uprising of several hundred members of the peace preservation corps and police of the Chinese controled city.

A Chinese business man had been killed, a Chinese boy wounded, a bank looted and an $18,000 ransom collected for the return of the chairman of the Chinese chamber of commerce. The foreign residential area was not touched by the rioting and scattered gunfire.

Southern Column Gains.

There were scanty reports on the major Japanese drive and Chinese counter-drive in southwestern Shantung and northern Anhwei provinces, where 400,000 Chinese were trying to hold the Japanese back from a vise-like pressure on China's vital east-west railway, the Lunghai.

A Domei [Japanese news agency] dispatch from Tientsin said the Japanese southern column had defeated their foe northeast of Chuyi on the edge of Lake Hungtze in Anhwei province and were rolling northward against the Lunghai.

Japanese naval bombing planes, the dispatch said, were relentlessly bombing Chinese troops south of Tsining, less than 100 miles from the focal point of the double-headed Japanese drive, Suchow, junction of the Lunghai and Tientsin-Pukow [Nanking] railways.

A Shanghai terrorist last night threw a bomb into the offices of the Hwa Mei Wan Pao, a Chinese language newspaper, injuring two employés. The plant is registered as American property, with H. P. Mills of New Orleans as the publisher.

Apologize to British.

PEKING, North China, Jan. 16.—(AP)—The British embassy said today Japanese military officials had apologized for forcibly ejecting a British officer in uniform from the Chienmen railway station platform.

Bomb Canton Rail Lines.

CANTON, South China, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Fifty Japanese bombing planes disrupted Canton's railway trafic over the week-end by intensified assaults, especially on the Canton-Hankow line. Trains from Hankow were held up for twenty-four hours while workmen repaired bridges, trestles and trackage. A train for Hongkong was delayed for ten hours. Canton itself was not bombed.

LIQUOR STORE ROBBED.

Three bandits yesterday held up a fruit and liquor store at 2022 North Clark street and took $180 and some liquor from the store and from one customer. The clerk was Harry Stevens.

WHY COUGH?

DO AS MILLIONS HAVE DONE—USE PERTUSSIN

When you catch cold and your throat feels dry or clogged, the secretions from countless tiny glands in your throat and windpipe often turn into sticky, irritating phlegm. This makes you cough.

Pertussin stimulates these glands to again pour out their natural moisture so that the annoying phlegm is loosened and easily raised. Quickly your throat is soothed, your cough relieved!

Your cough may be a warning signal from your respiratory system. Why neglect it? Do as millions have done! Use Pertussin, a safe, pleasant herbal remedy for children, grownups. Many physicians have prescribed Pertussin for over 30 years. It's safe, acts quickly. Sold at all druggists.

EGYPT'S FORMER PREMIER TARGET OF ROTTEN EGGS

Cairo Tense as Wedding of King Nears.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAIRO, Jan. 16.—Mustapha Nahas Pasha, former premier of Egypt and now leader of the opposition to the boy king, Farouk, today was rotten egged as he was getting into a train at Cairo on his way to Port Said to deliver a political speech.

Nahas Pasha.

Shortly afterward one of his partisans, a member of parliament, was recognized by a band of students in front of Shepheard's hotel as he was riding in an open carriage and he was attacked with knives.

Pasha's colleague escaped because the coachman whipped up his horses while the victim of the attack jumped out and ran into Shepheard's, which the students did not venture to enter.

May Break "Wedding Truce."

These incidents were sufficient to create a state of tension in Cairo, where the conflicting cross currents of European ambitions — British, Italian, German, and Turkish, but mainly the first two—create a ceaseless propaganda war.

Citizens of Cairo wondered if the truce tacitly called until after the king's wedding on Jan. 20 to Miss Farida Zulfikar will be observed, or if the ceremonies will be marred by disputes. The 18 year old king is determined to go through with the marriage next Thursday no matter what disturbances may occur.

In December Farouk ousted Premier Nahas and appointed Mohamed Mahmoud premier. He also ordered the Wafdist [Nationalist] Blue Shirt followers of Nahas dissolved.

Generally, however, all considerations of politics have been brushed aside for a moment in the general rejoicing over the romance of King Farouk and Farida, who is 17 years old and a daughter of Youssef Bey Zulfikar, councillor of the Alexandria mixed court of appeals. The Arabs, as much as the Anglo-Saxons, are excited about this apparent fairy tale, although they put a Moslem angle to it by expressing hope that the young queen will soon be a mother and provide a male heir.

Ceremony in Moslem Fashion.

There will be gigantic public celebrations in which Cairo's innumerable poor will be feasted. One hears anxious discussions among the Egyptian intellectuals who wonder if the new queen will have to go veiled, as dowager queen Nazlie was forced to do during the life of King Fuad. She never appeared in public, even veiled.

Already these modernists are disappointed at the news that the ceremony is going to be in the ancient Moslem fashion—that means no ceremony at all. Farouk will simply go to the bride's father's house where a contract will be signed, and then the bride will drive through the streets of Cairo to Abdine palace.

Modernists, who are pushing forward to control Egypt's affairs, were hoping for some repudiation of tradition on the lines set by President Kemal Ataturk in Turkey. [Ataturk reformed Turkish customs, introducing western methods by force when necessary.]

Not only will the marriage be traditionally Moslem, but Queen Farida's conduct thereafter apparently will be along the same lines, despite her modern upbringing, with sports and free association with young men in the capitals of Europe.

This reserved conduct is demanded by the Egyptian populace, which is very pious and conservative in manners, and would be deeply shocked at a queen who disregarded the ancient customs.

IRISH-BRITISH EYES ON ULSTER AT PARLEY TODAY

Partition Problem May Upset London Talks.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Jan. 16.—Eamon de Valera, prime minister of Ireland, spent today quietly in London making final preparations for tomorrow's Anglo-Irish conference in Downing street. He did not emerge from his suite in the Piccadilly hotel, except to attend mass in Westminster cathedral in the morning. In the afternoon he conferred with other Irish delegates and in the evening he discussed the conference arrangements with representatives of the dominions office who called at the hotel.

Tonight De Valera issued a brief statement emphasizing "the great difficulties to be overcome" before a settlement of the Irish-British question could be reached. "As far as the Eire [Ireland] delegation is concerned," the statement added, "we earnestly desire to lay the foundation for friendly relations between the peoples of the two countries and we hope that in the present conversations some progress may be made towards that end."

Ulster Main Issue.

Questioned by reporters, De Valera spoke guardedly about the outcome of the conference and the length of his stay in London. "Everything depends on the line the negotiations take," he said. "In certain matters maybe the necessary discussions will entail considerable detail, and all that takes time."

The talks will range over the problems of defense, finance, economics, and the unification of northern and southern Ireland. The partition question [the Irish proposal to join Ulster with Ireland under the new constitution] will be the dominating issue of the talks, and, on the way this problem is handled may depend the success of the conference, it was said tonight.

"Unity First Point."

"We cannot negotiate unless we can take back a message to our people that the partition issue will one day be practically settled," said a member of the Irish delegation tonight. "If Great Britain would accept the principle of a united Ireland—no matter what future day it may be—then the rest of the difficulties could be faced."

Lita Grey Chaplin Reveals Plans to Wed Her Manager

Kansas City, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Lita Grey Chaplin and her manager, Arthur F. Day Jr., disclosed here today they planned to marry in July, probably in Europe. Day said he and the divorced wife of Charles Chaplin, screen comedian, were here for a rest and to give him a chance to introduce Miss Chaplin to many aunts and cousins as his future wife.

Fasting Pastor Seeks Living Proof of Man's Immortality

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Dean Israel Harding Noe startled a large congregation at St. Mary's cathedral today, the 15th day of his abstinence from food and water, with the statement that the church needs to offer living proof of man's immortality to bring doubters to its services.

"Unless the church of Jesus Christ in this twentieth century can produce a demonstration of the fact that the whole gospel can be lived here and now, by man, the church will be compelled to close its doors and the sooner it closes its doors the better it will be for men," the emaciated clergyman declared.

Avoids Mention of Fast.

The dean's sermon apparently was a public exposition of his own efforts to prove, through abstinence from material food and taking strength from the divine source, that man can put on the godhead bodily. He made no mention of fasting.

After service the dean demonstrated his vigor by standing at the door of the cathedral and shaking the hands of several hundred persons, most of whom he called by name.

Dean Noe became news back in 1932 when his wife, Mrs. Ellen Cambios Noe, sued him for divorce, charging physical abandonment. The suit was unsuccessful, and the couple recently became reconciled.

Outlines Marriage Philosophy.

At the time of the reconciliation, Dean Noe issued a statement that he believed "marriage is a divine sacrament, composed of two parts, both equally sacred, the life of generation and the life of regeneration."

The dean lived all of last year on oranges, his friends say, and since Jan. 2 has had no food, fruit or water. He weighs less than 100 pounds. He formerly weighed nearly 200.

RUMANIAN TOWN FORBIDS JEWS TO SPEAK RUSSIAN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 16.—It was demonstrated today that Premier Octavian Goga's anti-Semitic policy is offering difficulties for Jewish intellectuals and may eliminate many small merchants in the northern part of the country. The mayor of the Bessarabian town of Baltze has prohibited the use of the Russian and Jewish languages not only in offices, but in all public places.

The campaign against Jewish lawyers by the Bucharest lawyers' chamber continues. Of 3,200 lawyers 521 are Jews. Their credentials are being examined by a committee of anti-Semitic lawyers who have decided in most cases so far that Jewish lawyers are not entitled to membership in the chamber and thus are not able to continue as lawyers.

Jews may appeal from this decision, but the committee is urging the minister of justice to decree that no appeal from the chamber's decisions is possible.

LET REDS GO, BUT HOLD CATHOLICS IN CHURCH RIOT

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

VERA CRUZ, Mexico, Jan. 16.—Four Catholic women, who were within Christ church here yesterday when fifty communist youths attacked and burned it, were released by the police this morning after spending last night in jail, but thirteen Catholic men are still being held because none of the police will take the responsibility for having ordered their arrest.

Meanwhile, Catholics in Vera Cruz have protested the arrests to officials because none of the communists who attacked Catholics in the church with sticks, revolvers, and bottles were arrested.

The church had been handed over by the federal secretary of finance to a local group of Vera Cruz Catholics, in comformity with Mexican law.

Milwaukee Road Officials Will Honor Him.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 16.—[Special.] John M. Horan, oldest active railroad employé in the United States will be 100 years old next Sunday. He still is working for his first employer and come next April 17 he will have completed 83 years of service for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad company.

Next Saturday a dining car will be rolled into the Milwaukee shops and a luncheon will be given in his honor. H. A. Scandrett, president, and J. L. Gillick, vice president of the Milwaukee road, will come from the Chicago office to honor him.

Grows with Railroading.

Working for the company years before any of the present officials were born, Soda Ash Johnny, as he is known to executives and employés of the Milwaukee road, knows railroading from its infancy.

He has been a machinist, engineer, and traveling inspector of locomotives. Through the years he has kept abreast of motive power developments and the locomotives that speed up to 105 miles an hour over 11,200 miles of right of way today mean no more to him than the old woodburners that ran at a top speed of 30 miles an hour.

Johnny was 17 years old when he received his first railroad job, the task of piling cord wood onto the tenders of locomotives. He was born in Burlington, Vt., on Jan. 23, 1838. A few years later his father migrated to Milwaukee, where he found employment as a railroad carpenter.

The boy's natural interest was in railroading; he wanted to be a locomotive engineer. His father obtained his first job for him when he took charge of the wood yard. With the development of motive power his duties changed from time to time. First he became a machinist in the Milwaukee shops. Eventually he won the right to handle a locomotive and later became a traveling inspector.

Process Saves Millions.

A process that Johnny Horan developed saved millions for railroads and earned for him his nickname of Soda Ash. In the early days of tubular boilers on locomotives much difficulty was encountered because intense heat in the firebox caused lime and other solubles in water to accumulate inside the tubes. As an inspector Horan gave time and thought to methods for cleaning the tubes and finally hit upon the use of soda ash, which dissolved the lime deposits and solved the problem.

Today Soda Ash Johnny, who for many years has spurned a pension to remain active, is inspector of the boiler washing department in the Milwaukee shops and still is using soda ash to do the job.

Long a widower, Johnny now lives with his son William and family in Milwaukee. William, nearing 70 and the age of retirement, like his father has had one employer all his life. He is an engineer for the Milwaukee road and has more than 50 years' service behind him.

POLICE RE-ELECT ALL OFFICERS OF AID ASSOCIATION

Mayor Kelly told the policemen the department has won the respect of the city and the nation for its courage, efficiency, and dignity. "Members of the department have demonstrated that they are ready to die to protect life and property," he said.

The officers reëlected are James J. Sullivan, president; Thomas P. Heaphy, vice president; George J. Biedermann, financial secretary; Edward J. Carey, recording secretary, and John J. Flannery, treasurer. A total of 6,676 policemen belong to the association, which sponsors the annual police field meet.

2 BANDITS KEEP SHOWUP DATE AND ARE SHOWN UP

When two bandits took $113 and $250 worth of dresses from Miss Mabel Greiner in a dress shop at 4811 North Damen avenue on Dec. 23, one of them told her: "Drop in at the police showup some time. Maybe you'll see us."

Two men Miss Greiner identified as the bandits were at the detective bureau showup all right yesterday. They were Charles Ickes, 30 years old, a paroled convict from Alexandria, Ind., and Thomas David Rix, 35 years old, who gave the address of 2944 Mildred avenue. They were caught with an automobile load of dresses in Waverly, Miss., and returned here.

BLONDE FRIEND MAY FACE WRIGHT IN MURDER TRIAL

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Surprise witnesses will figure vitally in Paul A. Wright's murder trial. It is expected that a jury will be completed tomorrow for the trial in Judge Ingall Bull's court. The identity of the witnesses will be closely guarded by counsel for the prosecution and defense until the moment their names are called and they take their places in the witness chair.

One of them may be a blonde woman with whom Wright is reported to have been in Hollywood on the nights preceding last Nov. 9 when he shot his wife, Evelyn, 33 years old, and his best friend, John Bryant Kimmel, 34 years old, an air line executive.

ROBS "L" CASHIER OF $30.

Miss June Yochem, cashier in the Division street station of the elevated lines, was robbed of $30 of the railway's funds by a bandit yesterday.

SEEKS WARANT FOR MURDER IN WOMAN SLAYING

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Assistant Prosecutor William E. Dowling said tonight he would recommend a warant charging Mrs. Julia M. Barker, once wealthy Detroit real estate dealer, with first degree murder for the shooting of her friend and associate, Mrs. Edith Mae Cummings.

Dowling's statement was made after Mrs. Barker was taken by automobile to the snow filled country ravine near Belleville, Mich., where Mrs. Cummings was found shot to death yesterday.

The woman, who surrendered at the prosecutor's office three hours after her associate's body was found, slumped in a rear seat and covered her head with a blanket, refusing to emerge.

Prosecutor Duncan C. McCrea said Mrs. Barker first admitted she shot Mrs. Cummings after a quarrel over a minor matter, then asserted she couldn't remember having the gun or shooting it.

LABOR LEADERS RENEW DEMAND ON CIO FOR PEACE

Reason for Strife Past, Argues a Founder.

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Additional indication of growing dissention within the Committee for Industrial Organization, headed by John L. Lewis, and a warning to Lewis to discontinue his disruptive attitude were contained in statements made today by two labor leaders.

Max Zaritsky, head of the United Hatters, Cap, and Millinery Workers' union, and one of the eight founders of the C. I. O., made a plea for immediate peace between the C. I. O. and the American Federation of Labor. Zaritsky said the reason for strife between the rival labor organizations no longer existed and that irreparable harm is being done to the labor movement in the United States.

Woll Assails C. I. O.

Matthew Woll, a vice president of the A. F. of L., deplored provocative actions of the C. I. O. at a time when jobs are becoming scarce and a feeling of hostility toward labor is spreading throughout the nation. He said unless peace is restored widespread violence will result.

Zaritsky belongs to the C. I. O., although his 40,000 needle workers have remained loyal to the A. F. of L. and are the only needle workers remaining in the parent organization.

His declaration followed a statement made last week by David Dubinsky, head of the garment workers, who accused Lewis of having dictatorial ambitions. He also assailed Lewis for permitting the heavy flow of communists into the C. I. O. and their occupancy of executive positions.

Puts Blame on Leaders.

"Who is at fault in this unfortunate cleavage of American labor?" Woll asked 3,000 New York photo engravers he addressed today. "It is of the utmost importance to realize that the blame rests with the leaders of the so-called C. I. O.," he said, answering his question.

"The American Federation of Labor did seek sincerely a settlement for restoration of peace," Woll declared.

Woll reminded the engravers there is no distinction between the unions making up the two organizations. He branded the issue of industrial unionism as against trade unionism fictional inasmuch as the components of the C. I. O. are identical in form and character to those of the A. F. of L.

"The general public is becoming more concerned in the strife that already has reached dangerous proportions and will lead to unquestioned increase in violence," Woll predicted. "The situation today is not enviable and may be regarded as fraught with peril.

Near Violent Clash, He Says.

"Labor is on the road to a violent clash, led by the disruptive attitude of the C. I. O. Lives will be lost."

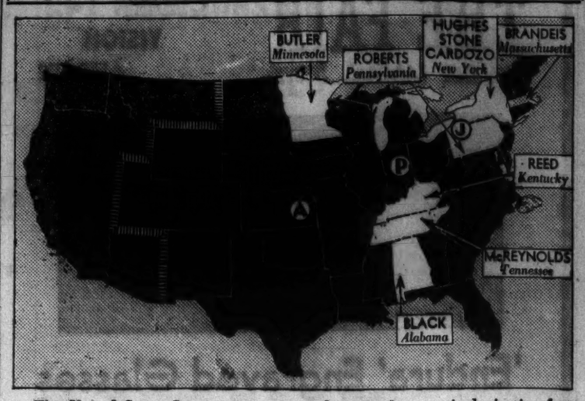
In Washington, D. C., today Ralph Emerson, legislative representative of the maritime unions affiliated with the C. I. O., accused the senate commerce committee of unfairness as a result of the publicity given to testimony concerning actions of seamen aboard American vessels, taken at a hearing before the commerce and labor committees.

Emerson disputed charges made by a sea captain who said discipline was lacking aboard ships and denied charges contained in affidavits made by passengers who were aboard the liner President Hoover when the ship went aground off Formosa. These affidavits said members of the ship's crew were drunk and disorderly.

Hague Attacks C. I. O.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Mayor Frank Hague, on the eve of his 62d birthday, today issued a statement in which he charged the seamen's union, an affiliate of the C. I. O., had directed attacks on Jersey City through communistic members since he had instructed the police to prevent them from applying their disorder and riots in that city during the maritime strike several months ago.

West Unrepresented on Supreme Court



The United States Supreme court now does not have a single justice from the area west of the Mississippi river. Pertinent facts on the makeup of the court are outlined on the map as follows: (A) geographical center of the United States; (P) center of population, and (J) center of distribution of U. S. Supreme court justices. Stanley Reed, a Kentuckian, is expected to be assigned to the Ninth judicial circuit, comprising that area west of the shaded line, and Alaska and Hawaii.

The New Lineup

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The retirement of Justice George Sutherland of Utah and the appointment of Solicitor General Stanley F. Reed of Kentucky to fill the vacancy leaves the United States Supreme court without a single representative from the vast area west of the Mississippi river.

Justice Pierce Butler of St. Paul, Minn., is the only member of the court from the country west of Tennessee, the home state of Justice James Clark McReynolds.

Reed is expected to be assigned for administrative and routine judicial services to the Ninth judicial circuit which is represented by Justice Sutherland. It includes seven Pacific coast and Rocky mountain states.

When Justice Willis Van Devanter of Wyoming was succeeded by Justice Hugo L. Black of Alabama last year a redistribution of circuit assignments was required because Justice Van Devanter was assigned to both the Seventh and Fifth circuits. The Fifth circuit, represented by Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo, was assigned to Justice Black, and Justice Cardozo, who is a New Yorker, took the Seventh circuit, including Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin.

The Tenth circuit, including six western states, was given to Justice Butler in addition to the Eighth, making a total of 13 states in which he is required to handle emergency matters arising from the lower courts such as stays of execution and permission to file appeal.

TAX BOARD OPENS HEARINGS TODAY ON COMPLAINTS

The Cook county board of tax appeals will open hearings today on the first 94 of several thousand taxpayers' complaints against 1937 personal property assessments made by Assessor John S. Clark.

Access to federal income tax returns enabled Clark's investigators to discover intangibles—stocks, bonds, and cash—which were omitted by their holders on their 1936 schedules. These discoveries have led to a total personal property valuation of $780,496,637, an increase of 57 per cent over the 1936 total of $486,611,801.

With 8,000 complaints already on file, estimates of the ultimate number after three remaining townships meet their deadlines ranged from 15,000 to 23,000. The hearings, to be held in the board's rooms in the county building, will last several months.

Retail Clothiers to Open National Meeting Today

Experts who keep the well dressed man well dressed will display the clothes they want him to wear at the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Furnishers' convention which opens today in the Hotel La Salle.

Men models will show the new fashions in a style show tomorrow. The summer styles, the experts say, have been designed especially for comfort and coolness.

TEACHER KILLED, ANOTHER HURT BY SCHOOL BLAST

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 16.—(AP)—One Jefferson, S. D., high school teacher was injured fatally and another was critically hurt today when a boiler exploded in the basement of the high school there. Jefferson is six miles northwest of Sioux City.

Theron Harmon, 25 years old, history instructor, died tonight in a hospital here, five hours after the blast. The other victim, Henry Hladky, 24 years old, athletic coach and mathematics instructor, was burned over his body by hot coals that were blown about the room when the boiler exploded. He is in a hospital here.

The explosion occurred this afternoon after the two teachers had lighted a fire under an auxiliary boiler to obtain hot water for a shower following a round of exercises in the school gymnasium.

JUDGE IN INDIANA KILLED IN FIGHT; KINSMAN IS HELD

Robert E. Parks, justice of the peace at Hobart, Ind., died yesterday in the Mercy hospital in Gary after a fist fight in which his brother-in-law admitted being a principal. The brother-in-law, Franklin T. Fetterer Jr. of Valparaiso, Ind., was held in the Hobart jail last night.

Chief Frank Traeger of the Hobart police said Fetterer admitted going to the justice's home Saturday in protest against the treatment Parks gave Fetterer's sister, Thelma, who married Parks eight months ago and recently left to live at the Fetterer home after Parks filed suit for divorce.

The chief quoted Fetterer as saying that he beat Parks, but did not mean to kill him. Fetterer is a powerfully built man of 39. Parks was smaller, slighter, and 51 years old.

Traeger said charges would be filed against Fetterer this morning. Hobart is a town of 5,600 population southeast of Gary. Parks was appointed justice of the peace two years ago. Fetterer, an engineer, is the father of six children. He works in Hammond.

FALL ON STAIRS KILLS VETERAN.

Sioux City, Ia., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Samuel L. Johnson, 65 years old, a Spanish-American war veteran, died last night from a fractured skull incurred Tuesday night when he fell eighteen feet over a stair railing at the Rutland hotel here, where he lived. Efforts are being made to find relatives.

Head of I-C Bank Robbed by Three Bandits in Loop

Three bandits last night took possession of the car of Irwin I. Altschuler, president of the I-C Bank and Trust company, in front of the Standard club at 320 Plymouth court. The gunmen forced the chauffeur to drive south to Harrison street while they took a $1,600 fur coat, a $250 string of pearls, and a $175 wristwatch from Mrs. Altschuler, and $125 from Mr. Altschuler. The gunmen dropped the pearls as they leaped from the car. The Altschulers live at 5355 Everett avenue, a short distance from the bank, at 1542 East 53d street.

on the top until guards came after him. Hearing the shooting, Rabalais, just ready to climb the ladder, changed his mind about attempting to escape.

Outside, Yoho was captured without a struggle by Clarence Hawthorne, guard captain, who was walking his dog, and Benjamin Jennings, a guard who was with Hawthorne. The wounded Loftus and injured Ristich were quickly taken back within the walls.

Keeper Monahan was found to have been only slightly injured. He said Loftus had taken his wallet, containing $31, but it could not be found. Loftus was involved in an escape plot in 1933 when a revolver was tossed over the wall into the prison.

Traced by Phone Call.

Ristich is the parolee sent back to prison in July, 1936, after he burglarized the home of Sergt. Earle L. Miller of the Chicago police, at 5014 Congress street. While in the home, Ristich telephoned to the Pontiac reformatory, from which he had been paroled, to inquire after the health of some of his friends.

Sergt. Miller was without a clew as to the identity of the burglar, who incidentally started a fire that caused $5,000 damage to the Miller home, until the monthly telephone bill arrived. One item was a call to the prison.

Sergt. Miller investigated and learned that the burglar, in telephoning the prison, had identified himself as Ristich to a guard with whom he chatted. The sergeant went to Ristich's home and arrested him.

Ristich was puzzled. He said he had very carefully torn the telephone out and thrown it into the bathtub, after making the call, so the call couldn't be traced.

ROB WESTERN UNION OFFICE.

POLICEMEN SAVE A ROBBER FROM ENRAGED VICTIMS

A robber who, with two companions, held up a tavern in Gary early yesterday morning was saved from being kicked to death by enraged patrons of the place only by the arrival of police.

When the three entered, Stanley Konarski was tending bar and gave them $40 from the till. As he handed it over, he grabbed the gun in the hand of one of the bandits. In the struggle it was discharged and the bullet struck Frank Konarski, 21 years old, a brother of Stanley. Frank was wounded in the abdomen, probably fatally. The patrons then pitched in. The other two bandits fled.

The beaten robber said he is Harold Parker, 24, of Indiana Harbor. He gave the names of his companions, Roy Ramsey, 25, and Sumner W. Ogden, 28, of Hammond, who were arrested. Frank Konarski was still alive last night.

DIES IN HALLWAY OF HOME.

THE RULES

WHO CAN ENTER? This game is open to everybody — men, women, boys, and girls everywhere — except employes of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families.

WHAT TO DO? Every week day a picture containing the scrambled name of a movie star will be published until 36 have appeared. Unscramble the name. Use every letter in the picture. Write or print the name on the line provided, or on any piece of paper. Hold all answers until you have the complete set of 36. DO NOT SEND THEM IN SEPARATELY.

WHERE TO SEND? Mail your entry by First Class Mail to "Movie Stars," Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 1718, Chicago, Illinois. With your entry send a letter, giving your name and address and telling in 50 words or less, who is your favorite movie star and why. Letters will be considered only in the event of ties in naming the stars. Entries must be in the office of the Chicago Tribune by midnight, 12 days after Name No. 36 has appeared.

BASIS OF AWARDS. Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree that the judges' decisions will be final. Awards will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved, complete sets of unscrambled names. Neither handwriting nor elaborateness will count. In case of ties, duplicate awards will be paid.

4,350,000 IDLE GET NAZI JOBS ON STATE PAY ROLLS

Thousands of Others Are Driven Into Exile.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[SECOND ARTICLE.]

BERLIN, Jan. 16.—The Nazi government of Germany is based theoretically on Reichsfuehrer Hitler's book, "My Struggle," and on the party program worked out by Gregor Strasser, who was killed in the blood purge of June, 1934, and formulated by Gottfried, once a powerful leader of the party, now a dim figure in the background.

Only persons of German race can be German "citizens." Jews and half Jews rank merely as nationals, a fundamental tenet of the original Nazi program.

This has been carried out rigorously in the "anti-Jewish laws of Nuremburg." Every day Nazi officials take new steps, secret or open, to complete the ostracizing and pauperization of German Jews.

A Parliament of "Yes Men."

Point 6 of the Nazi program grants the "right to decide what the leadership and the laws of the country should be" to citizens. But the parliament elected by the people has no powers. The leaders in all walks of life are appointed by the government or party. Consequently the theoretical right to decide on leadership and laws would seem illusory.

The party program called for abolition of a parliament branded as "corrupt." The new parliament is composed of men who earned the Nazi party's gratitude through their obedience. It is much bigger than any parliament Germany has ever had, and the greater part of the members hold the well paid reichstag "job" because, to date, the party has not been able to find better paying berths for them.

Those who have an income of more than 1,000 marks a month from other sources must donate the funds paid to them by the reichstag for purposes prescribed by the party.

Unemployment Is Reduced.

Theoretically, under point 7 of Hitler's program "the state must see to it that the citizen can earn a living." This the Nazis declare they have achieved "by reducing unemployment most drastically from more than 6,000,000 to about 1,000,000.

This was accomplished to a great extent by the introduction of conscription and through rearmament. Experts estimate that 2,000,000 men work directly or indirectly in the armament industry, 1,000,000 men are conscripts, 300,000 do short term military service, 300,000 are in the labor service, 750,000 women relinquished jobs to get married on the state dowry plan. Thus a total of 4,350,000 men and women are off the dole, but their income is derived from the state.

Unemployment was further reduced by the departure of between 150,000 and 160,000 Jews, Socialists, communists, pacifists, or more stubborn republicans, who left behind them from 70 to 80 per cent of their property, if not all; by the internment of tens of thousands in concentration camps and prisons on suspicion of objecting to the Nazi state, and by the fact that the thin ranks of the post-war generations are starting to work.

Nazis Get Preference.

Point 9 of Hitler's program declares that "all citizens must have equal rights and duties." Hitler himself, however, has declared that "only superiors may criticize." Furthermore, members of the Nazi party must be given preference to other Germans. When seeking jobs in the postal and other services the party member has a better chance of finding work than an outsider.

With a flourish Germany is enforcing point 10 of Hitler's program: "It is the duty of every citizen to work, practically or mentally." Work is the slogan of every one in Germany, and the man or woman who tries to shirk will receive no help from the state or community. The working discipline of Germans has always been good—the few existing loopholes have been stopped.

"Abolition of all incomes obtained without work," which was point 11 of the Nazi program, has not yet been enforced, but the interest on stocks and investments has been reduced so drastically and the taxes are so high that only a few of working age can live without work.

Inflation Wipes Out Fortunes.

The confiscation of war profits remained a theoretic point on the Nazi program because inflation wiped away many wartime fortunes.

The state must take over all trusts, the party program demands in the 13th point. State control of big companies has increased, but the government is eager to have them keep up "private initiative."

The employers must donate funds to help the workers build gymnasia, swimming pools, or assembly halls where they can learn sports or listen to speeches. Canteens where workers may buy warm meals at half the cost were features of nearly every factory shown to the duke of Windsor on his tour of Germany.

"A generous development of the old age pension scheme," which is point 15 of the Nazi program, is being considered by the welfare agents.

THOMAS MANN'S DAUGHTER TALKS ON HITLER REGIME

Dissenters against the Hitler régime in Germany must keep their activities underground, Miss Erika Mann, daughter of Thomas Mann, exiled German novelist, said in a lecture last night in International house at the University of Chicago. Miss Mann came into conflict with Nazism, she said, when a play she wrote bearing a suggestion of antagonism toward dictators was banned in Munich. Miss Mann's father, a Nobel literature prize winner, is now in Switzerland.

GANDHI TO STAY SECLUDED UNTIL HE IS WELL AGAIN

BOMBAY, Jan. 16.—(AP)—Mohandas K. Gandhi [formerly known as the mahatma—holy man], in virtual seclusion at Shegaon, in the inland province of Berar, announced today he would remain there until he had recovered his health.

The aged and gaunt nationalist leader is afflicted with heart disease and high blood pressure.

He had halted all activity save that connected with the repatriation and release of political prisoners.

"I must mend or end here," he said. "God will not permit me to live a moment longer than he needs me for his work for he knows what work to take out of me."

We've a 45 cent evening DINNER that is enough even for HUNGRY folks. It starts with a soup and has a meat or fish and vegetables, with plenty of bread and butter and coffee, and then ends with a delightful dessert. I'm proud of it. I'm sure you'll like it.

Your HOST,
D. L. Toffenetti.

MEMORY

By CALEB

IN a book on "Assimilative Memory"—in my library for many years—the author outlines how dates and numbers may be remembered through the use of words. He has certain consonants for specific digits. That is simple enough.

Presume, for instance, you wish to remember the exact number of plays Shakespeare wrote. This little book says that one way to recall that Mr. Shakespeare wrote thirty-seven plays is as follows: ". . . . If you recall that old character of Shylock was played with great success at Old Drury February 17, 1741, by Charles Macklin, you would find in the first two consonants of his name (M and C) the figure 37."

However—inasmuch as Old Drury and Charles Macklin and February 17, 1741, seem rather remote from me and my time, it might be easier for me to remember that Shakespeare wrote thirty-seven plays by recollecting that Aunt Amanda Corntickle, who wore curlpapers and hated cats, came down with pneumonia the same day in 1919 that I ate mackerel at Hoffenpheiffer's restaurant in New Orleans. In the first two consonants of mackerel I have the consonants M and C, which stand for 3 and 7, respectively, or 37 collectively.

On the other hand, arranging a sequence of facts building up to two consonants to recall two numbers seems a trifle involved. It might be wiser to simply remember that Shakespeare wrote 37 plays. Or if I forget, I shall look it up. That, I think, is probably the very best solution.

Occasionally we all have the opportunity of seeing important men work—at least at long range. The more effectively they accomplish their purposes the less do they concern themselves, it is our impression, with Old Drurys and Aunt Amandas.

Rather, they seem to have a faculty for distinguishing that which is fundamental and essential out of an entire bale of chaff, and if they recall any bones of the important skeleton of the subject, they can by logic name them all, from bone to bone.

We often tell people here that there is nothing mysterious about our business. It is a matter of making a line as straight as possible between starting and concluding points.

FIX CONSTITUTION AS YARDSTICK IN APRIL PRIMARIES

Nation-wide support at the April primaries of senators and congressmen who have opposed changes in the constitution and other American institutions was urged yesterday by the Union League Club of Chicago, which expects to enlist other conservative groups throughout the country in its new campaign.

Nicholas J. Conrad.

The club's political program calls for support of Democrats and Republicans alike, the yardstick being fidelity to American principles, according to Nicholas J. Conrad, president, who made the announcement.

"The organized efforts to break down the American form of government and the rights and liberties of citizens have gone too far," Mr. Conrad said.

Commends Congressmen.

"We heartily commend those members of the national congress in either of its branches, regardless of party, who uphold the basic principles of our government."

A list of the endangered principles repeats charges often made against the administration. The following are condemned:

"1. The use of official power, appointive authority, and public funds to influence the election and official actions of members of congress in order to make them subservient to the executive will.

"2. The extension of burocratic government, centralized in Washington and operating to destroy local authority throughout the land.

Pressure Groups Assailed.

"3. The building up of class distinctions among our citizens, to the destruction of the basic democratic principle of equal rights and equal opportunities for all.

"4. The enactment of legislation dictated by lobbies, blocs, and pressure groups, motivated by, or organized on a basis of, self-interest.

"5. The infringement, by violence, of the basic laws, by organized groups relying upon official toleration of such lawlessness."

Refer to Chicago Speech.

Such apprehension has not been allayed by the President's pronouncements, such as his Chicago speech advocating American participation in a "quarantine" of Japan and other aggressor nations, such as his letter to Alf Landon asserting: "We owe some measure of coöperation and even leadership in maintaining standards of conduct helpful to the ultimate goal of general peace." By this he was understood to mean that he was ready to take the lead in applying coercion to Japan at the risk of involvement in war.

Senator Rush Holt [D., W. Va.] reflected the attitude of backsliding Democrats when he said that the President's proposal to abolish all holding companies will do nothing but add confusion and increase fear.

Finds Confused Viewpoints.

"Since his inauguration," Holt added,, "he has shown a confused viewpoint on holding companies. There is no question but that bad holding company practices should be eliminated, but there is no need to destroy the value of these agencies in order to reach these bad practices."

The apprehensions of both capital and labor were laid before the President by the group including Thomas W. Lamont, Owen D. Young, and John L. Lewis he received last Friday.

MISSING RECORDS ARE FOUND IN SALES TAX CASE

Robert M. Stowers, head of the Chicago office of the state finance department, which is investigating sales tax fraud, said yesterday that missing records of eight months' tax payments by the McFadden Motor Sales company have been found in the department files in Springfield. He said they were misfiled.

The records were reported lost last Thursday after the grand jury opened a hearing into the alleged failure of the company to pay $30,000 sales taxes during 1935 and 1936.

William H. McFadden, president of the company; David K. Springwater, manager, and Edmond F. La Vole, dismissed investigator who is charged with having accepted money from the company for alleged tax fixing, are to be arraigned on conspiracy charges today before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington in Criminal court.

Mayor Opens Bus Service Connecting Two Parks

A ten year fight for surface lines bus service on Ogden avenue between Lincoln and Union parks was ended yesterday when Mayor Kelly and representatives of civic groups formally opened the service with ceremonies at the north terminal of Clark and Center streets. Regular service every 3½ minutes during rush periods and 7 minutes during the remainder of the day will start today. The buses will operate from the north terminal to Paulina and Monroe streets.

WINDOW BREAKER DODGES BULLETS, LEAVES EVIDENCE

Policeman Edward Smurawski and John McVeigh of the New City station heard the crash of a window early yesterday and saw a small hunched figure running down the street from 4613 South Ashland avenue where a display window was a wreck. They chased the man and emptied their guns at him, but missed.

Near the window they found a small coat and hat. Policeman McVeigh remembered that six months before they had arrested John Sura, a hunchback 23 years old with an urge to hear windows smash. Sura had had a coat like this one.

They arrived at Sura's home at 4744 South Justine street as Sura walked in, coatless, hatless, and shivering. He confessed smashing the window. He didn't know why. But he was glad the policemen were poor marksmen.

WHAT CATHARTICS DO TO YOU!

Harsh pills and purgatives often over-stimulate your intestines . . . and leave them weak and listless.

If your constipation is of the common type that is due to insufficient bulk, there's a better way to treat it. Kellogg's All-Bran supplies the bulk you need. It absorbs moisture and softens like a sponge. This water-softened mass aids elimination. But All-Bran does still more. It contains vitamin B1 . . . the vitamin that helps tone the intestinal tract.

NEAR SHOWDOWN ON DEMOCRATIC FIGHT IN INDIANA

Van Nuys and McNutt to Lock Horns Soon.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The impending return to Indiana of both Paul V. McNutt, former governor, and Frederick Van Nuys, senior United States senator, who are leaders of two of the four major factions in the Hoosier Democratic party, is forcing hasty forming of the ranks for the political struggle that will culminate in party conventions in June.

Senator Van Nuys.

McNutt, as United States high commissioner to the Philippines, is now conducting a survey of the far eastern situation and will return to this country via Clipper from Manila at the end of this month. After reporting in Washington he will return here and promptly begin a series of political conferences, including a formal appearance as principal speaker at the winter meeting of the Indiana Democratic Editors' association.

Van Nuys in Public Eye.

Senator Van Nuys has announced that he will return to Indiana as soon as the senate acts on his anti-lynching bill. He has gained unexpected prominence in the last year because of his championship of the move to outlaw lynching and because of his blunt refusal to bow to White House dictation by accepting the court packing scheme. He is profiting by the growing resentment of old line Indiana Democrats over the high handed way the young Democrats have been riding rough shod over the stalwarts.

Van Nuys was party leader in the state senate and then state committee chairman before many of the McNutt faction had even cast their first votes. He was a confidante of the late Thomas Taggart, former state chairman, former national chairman, and former United States senator. The McNutt faction and also the faction headed by the present governor, Clifford Townsend, have taken the Van Nuys court packing opposition as an excuse to cry "disloyalty" and so are demanding his defeat when he seeks renomination this spring. Van Nuys has decided that he will run independently if he does not get the formal party indorsement.

Try to Oust Taggart.

Another man naturally respected by the stalwarts is Thomas Taggart Jr. A persistent effort is being made to oust him as Indiana's member of the Democratic national committee, a position his father long held. Delaying a showdown on this question is a bitter quarrel over who would succeed Taggart. Frank McHale, the power behind the throne of the McNutt organization, is seeking this position. As national committeeman McHale would direct the McNutt for President campaign in 1940. Alex Pursley, political sponsor of Townsend, also would like to be national committeeman. Already a district chairman, Pursley is pushing Townsend for the vice presidential nomination in 1940.

It is this clash between the presidential ambitions of McNutt and the vice presidential hopes of Townsend, which have been built up by Democratic National Chairman James Farley as a buffer against McNutt, that is encouraging the supporters of Van Nuys. Also it encourages Earl Peters, leader of the fourth faction of the Democratic party. Peters was state chairman until McNutt was elected governor and he is considered the closest to Farley of all the Hoosier Democrats, because he alone among Indiana leaders resisted McNutt's opposition to Roosevelt in 1932 and championed the New Yorker at the national convention.

University Without President.

Townsend, as governor, has moved the last few days to force a decision by trustees of Indiana university regarding the presidency there, made vacant by resignation of the elderly Dr. William Lowe Bryan as soon as McNutt was in Manila. Gov. McNutt had appointed numerous friends to the trustees' board and seemed to have a majority sufficient to elect him as president when Dr. Bryan would present his long expected resignation. With McHale announcing that McNutt will resign as high commissioner before next August, McNutt's foes seem to fear he will return to the university as president. He was dean of its law school before becoming governor.

Friends of Sherman Minton say he prefers to remain in the United States senate, although both the Townsend and McNutt groups—originally cohesive—are trying to get Minton a federal bench post because they fear his growing power in national party councils. Minton just now remains aloof from the McNutt, Townsend, Van Nuys, and Peters factions. Originally he was elected by the McNutt faction, as was Townsend.

Minton seems content to be a spearhead for the radical wing of the national administration.

Death of Pastor's Wife Is Laid to Sleep Medicine

Mrs. Anna Royston, 51 years old, wife of the Rev. William E. Royston, pastor of the Lincoln Street Methodist Episcopal church, 1851 West 22d place, died last night in St. Anthony's hospital, apparently from an overdose of sleep medicine. The Rev. Mr. Royston found her unconscious Saturday in their home adjoining the church. Mrs. Royston leaves, besides her husband, two sons, Marvin and Harold, and an adopted daughter, Chreyl.

THIN MAN IS BOOKED.

James Sanders, 21 years old, colored, 4709 Michigan avenue, the thin man, who twice crawled through a narrow opening to loot the drug store at 701 Sheridan road, was booked on two charges of burglary by Town Hall police yesterday.

TRIO ON ROBBERY RAMPAGE GET $22 AND CLOTHES

Three men in an automobile went on a robbery rampage early yesterday on the west side. They held up three persons, kidnaped two of them, and slugged a fourth victim when he resisted. Two were armed with guns. They got $22.15, an overcoat, and a pair of gloves.

They first robbed Harry Greb, 2148 Marshall boulevard, of $7. Then they forced Casimir Sawicki of 4213 Cortez street into their car, took $15 from him, and released him in an alley. A little later they forced Leonard Moskovitz of 3410 Ohio street into their car, took his coat, gloves, and 15 cents, and tossed him out.

CONSCIENTIOUSLY
"I have used REM for my own [illegible], and can conscientiously recommend it to my customers. It's very effective."
Mr. Martin J. Weiss
Registered Pharmacist
2800 W. Allegheny Ave., Philadelphia
Here's Why:
Many a pharmacist, like Mr. Weiss, has taken REM and liked it so well that he recommended it to his customers. REM is thorough, for coughs resulting from colds, because it works two ways . . . in the throat and also systemically. REM is much more than just a "tickle stopper."

GONORRHEA

is a dangerous disease—one that may cause disability or even death!

Don't risk serious complications by resorting to self medication, but see a competent physician or this responsible clinic at once!

Turn a deaf ear to the man who tries to tell you that gonorrhea is no worse than a bad cold! And think twice before attempting to doctor yourself with something obtained from a friend—or with medicine incompetently prescribed by a druggist!

For gonorrhea is a truly dangerous disease—one that if improperly treated or neglected may lead to a sight-destroying eye infection, stricture, sterility, crippling rheumatism, or serious prostate, bladder, kidney and other troubles. Many a premature death results from the complications of this treacherous infection!

Therefore, take no chances with gonorrhea, but immediately consult a good doctor or clinic and continue treatment faithfully until repeated laboratory tests prove you are cured. Above all, avoid self medication with medicines which, in unskilled hands, may have an injurious if not fatal effect. Only recently a wave of deaths was caused by a preparation containing a drug with which many persons are recklessly attempting to cure themselves of gonorrhea!

Also avoid quack treatment

Neither should you allow a desire for secrecy to drive you into the hands of one of those quacks who distribute sensationally alarming pamphlets. Often they fail to accomplish a cure, but only relieve the more noticeable symptoms. Also, through ignorance they sometimes give venereal disease treatment to persons not even infected!

If you know or suspect that you have a venereal disease, the sensible thing to do is to consult your family physician or the well-trained doctors of the Public Health Institute. In either case, the fact that you are infected will be kept in strict confidence, for it is not even necessary that the names and addresses of venereal disease sufferers who are regularly under treatment be reported to the city health authorities!

To entrust yourself to the Public Health Institute is to be assured of specialized medical attention in complete privacy and at very low cost. Each patient is promptly attended in a private room, and for the sake of even greater privacy is known by number rather than by name.

Since 1920, the friendly, sympathetic men and women physicians of the Public Health Institute have given almost 5,000,000 examinations and treatments for syphilis and gonorrhea! This is your assurance of obtaining dependable venereal disease attention at their hands.

Treatments as low as $1.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute puts specialized treatment within the reach of those with limited income. A thorough examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including urinalysis, smears and blood tests, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less!

So don't let false economy cause you to resort to dangerous self medication, or permit a false sense of shame to drive you into the hands of a quack. For not only can the very best of medical attention be obtained confidentially and at nominal cost, but even persons temporarily pressed for funds can arrange to be cared for!

PRE-MARRIAGE EXAMINATIONS, including all necessary tests, cost $3.00 per person. Those examined before 2 P.M. can get their certificates the following morning.

DEMOCRATS SAY SEN. DIETERICH WILL RUN AGAIN

Report Roosevelt to Back Him for Senate.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Democratic leaders in Washington and Chicago said yesterday they had become convinced that United States Senator William H. Dieterich will seek renomination in the Illinois Democratic primary on April 12. It is understood his decision to run again is based on assurances of full support from the Roosevelt administration, a fact that will have an important bearing on Democratic conferences to be held in Washington this week. Possibly even before those talks get under way Dieterich may announce his candidacy and give an entirely new turn to the party situation in this state.

Senator Dieterich.

Meetings Hinge on Dieterich.

If Dieterich announces his plans at this time it is believed that two meetings of Illinoisans with President Roosevelt, scheduled for tomorrow and Thursday, will amount to little more than occasions for making known the administration's wish that all factions in the state get behind Dieterich for a second term.

Mayor Kelly leaves for Washington this afternoon. There he will join National Committeeman P. A. Nash, who is going to the capital from Florida where he has spent the last week. They are to see the President tomorrow.

Gov. Horner plans to go from Springfield to Washington on Wednesday and on Thursday to attend a White House dinner to which other Illinoisans have been invited. Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Cummings of Chicago have accepted their invitations. National Committeeman Nash sent his regrets with an explanation that sickness in the family will force him to cut short his visit to the capital.

Agenda of Dinner.

During or after the dinner it is expected the President will tell Gov. Horner his wishes concerning the Illinois senatorship. In Washington it is believed the White House invitation was extended to Mr. Horner at Senator Dieterich's suggestion.

The news, it is said, would be a shock to the governor except for the likelihood that it will have been told twenty-four hours earlier to Nash and the mayor and may also have been indicated by a formal announcement of Dieterich's plans.

The governor went on record through a press statement on Oct. 16 as saying that Dieterich "cannot be elected." The Nash-Kelly organization has not taken up the question of the senatorship and therefore is still counted as with Dieterich because it nominated and elected him in 1932.

Governor Has Own Candidate.

Gov. Horner has repeated over and over again his early assertion that the Democratic state organization—which he controls to a large extent—will have its own candidate for the senatorship. His favorites at this time are said to be John Cassidy of Peoria, who ran for lieutenant-governor on the Horner ticket in 1936, Congressman Scott W. Lucas of Beardstown, and Speaker Louie E. Lewis of the Illinois house. His preference is said to lean toward Cassidy. Whether he will change his plans after listening to Mr. Roosevelt is something on which his Chicago leaders differ.

One other angle of the situation which may be seriously affected by this week's developments is the downstate movement to persuade District Attorney Michael L. Igoe to run for the senatorship. He has not turned a deaf ear to talk along this line, but it is believed that if Dieterich announces and the national administration backs him, Igoe will refuse to run.

STEALS, THEN WRECKS POLICE CAR.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—Clem Vincent Haney, 28 years old, of Hastings, stole a police radio equipped automobile last night. The car was wrecked near here when it skidded on icy pavement and crashed into a telephone pole. Haney, who received minor injuries, was arrested.

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The blushing bride is passé, and the harrassed husband has replaced her. Alessandro Gagliardini, 34 years old, an employé of the International Travel Bureau of Italy, protested and pleaded with photographers not to take his picture, but his bride, the former Mrs. Bennett Clay Jefferson, willingly posed as the pair left the rectory of St. Patrick's cathedral after their marriage yesterday. The new Mrs. Gagliardini is a descendant of Henry Clay.

TRAILER TOURIST LEAVES FLORIDA AND HEADS NORTH

BY HAL FOUST.

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The Tribune automobile is towing its trailer north from the tropical end of Florida. We are headed for Chicago with its possibilities of snowstorms and zero temperatures. We have said goodby to camp neighbors, most of whom are remaining in the south for the season.

In the 193 miles of U. S. 1 here from West Palm Beach there were approximately three automobiles south bound for every one north bound. A majority of the cars bore licenses of northern states, with the green plates of Illinois and of Michigan conspicuous in the flow.

Resort Business Prosperous.

This was additional evidence that Florida is enjoying a prosperous resort business notwithstanding the national industrial recession. Travel history seemingly is repeating itself. For two years after the market crash of 1929, touring volumes were fairly well sustained. To go somewhere in his motor car is one of the last luxuries an American will surrender.

That cars are continuing to roll over the highways for recreation is of significance to the nation's general economics. The American Automobile association has estimated the annual expenditure for pleasure drives at four and a quarter billion dollars. Catering to tourists, while decentralized, is big business.

31 Trailers in 100 Miles.

In the southbound trafic in U. S. 1, within view of the Atlantic or its bays for much of the distance between here and Palm Beach, were a large number of trailers. In 100 miles on our odometer, we counted 31 of them.

From such scenes on Florida roads it would seem that trailers, which captured public curiosity a couple of years ago, are not a passing fad. A nationally known economist, whose newspaper articles are syndicated, today probably regrets his statement of a couple of years ago that half the population of America would live in trailers in a few decades.

But authorities responsible for public health and for public safety can't ignore the trailer problem on an assumption that it will die a natural death.

There will have to be advancements in the mechanics of the trailer and in their regulation in trafic and in camps.

CONSULTATION IN WASHINGTON.

Invitations have been sent to fifty business men of prominence to attend a White House conference on Jan. 19. The meeting was called to devise methods of checking the business recession.

Similar gatherings were summoned by Mr. Hoover shortly after the collapse of '29. The gentlemen who have now been invited to Washington are in something of a spot. They cannot decline, yet they may well expect that the conference will be used to fasten on them the charge that they are in one way or another responsible for the recession. Certain of the administration mouthpieces will say that the business leaders are being called on the carpet.

Their position is not so awkward as it would have been if the Jackson-Ickes theory that malevolence caused the recession had not been put aside. The present official explanation is that business men are frightened without cause. Only this baseless fear is supposed to be holding back prosperity. We are asked to believe that the trouble is all in the mind; that there are no substantial realities to explain the down-swing. If that is so, the holding of a pep meeting to restore courage has its obvious justification.

The trouble with this psychological explanation is that it doesn't fit the facts. The testimony before the senate committee on unemployment all goes to show the absence of fear until the recession was well advanced.

Hysteria did not dislocate the national economy. The decline was the logical consequence of a series of acts by the government. As long as these acts and the policies which they represent are a part of the administration's program business will be handicapped, whether fear prevails or not. A few of these fundamental causes of the decline may be summarized as follows:

1. The administration has no policy toward money and credit which it will stand by. Business, therefore, operates in an atmosphere of uncertainty.

2. The tax policies of the administration have been directed toward penalizing thrift and investment, both individual and corporate. Therefore little money is available for new ventures.

3. The budgetary unbalance has persisted through years of improving business and rising tax revenues, evidencing an unwillingness of the administration to make ends meet even under favorable circumstances.

4. Labor unrest to provoke revolution has been encouraged from Washington, thus further discouraging investment in new enterprises.

This is not an exhaustive list, but it suggests how real are the causes of the decline. The conferees invited to Washington will accomplish a good deal if they can make that clear.

GRAFT UNDER MR. ICKES.

Boy, wouldn't I like to have the money it takes to run that outfit! Among others who have soliloquized thusly, while driving past a WPA, CWA, or CCC camp, was Reno E. Stiles, a subordinate of Secretary Harold L. Ickes in the department of the interior. Unlike others, Mr. Stiles found the opportunity to do something about it.

Stiles set up his own private CCC camp on paper in the Shenandoah National park. Thereupon he began to pass vouchers to pay for the administration of his camp. Fictitious names to represent CCC workers, supposed to be engaged on soil erosion work, were signed to pay rolls, and the pay roll checks were delivered to Stiles, who was able to get money on them. It was some time before any one discovered that the government was paying for an extra CCC camp.

Although this is one of the best stories that has come out of the department of the interior since Mrs. Ickes became secretary, Mr. Ickes' publicity staf, said to be the largest in Washington, did not make the story public. It came out at a hearing by the senate public lands committee, which was considering the qualifications for office of an Ickes appointee.

The existence of such an opportunity for graft suggests that there ought to be a man in the department of the interior to see that there are as many parks as the taxpayers are paying for and as many Indians as there are Indian names on the books. The hearings have established that Mr. Ickes has an investigator. In fact, it is disclosed that he had at one time 375 and currently has 125. They function as an OGPU or GESTAPO, a secret police force like those under dictatorships, which open private mail and tap telephone wires. It is said that members of congress have received the attention of Ickes' private police force.

Since the Stiles incident shows that the OGPU is not doing what it is supposed to do, the senate committee should find out what it has been doing, and whether what it has been doing is a legitimate function of a democratic government. It is also suggested that the committee may find more good stories in the department of the interior.

THE FRENCH COMMUNISTS.

When the French communists were received into the Popular Front government the only persons who could have been deceived as to their intentions were such persons as chose not to accept the participation on the terms which the communists offered it.

Although the Stalin theory is supposed to be a degeneration of internationalist Marxism and to be for the establishment of socialism in one country alone, the instructions to the Stalin communists in all countries are to join any governmental coalition which will receive them.

Blum as a Socialist did receive them and try to base his government on the idea that they would be moderate. The only use the communist party in any country has for a radical is destructive. The French communists expected the French Popular Front to fail, but they also expected it to do so much damage to the capitalistic structure that when it did fall it would be difficult for moderates to build anything upon the wreckage. The communists intend the radical coalitions, wherever they can be set up, to do the spade work. They are to undermine the foundations of what the communists call the bourgeois social order and make it difficult for the middle classes to rebuild after a smash. Each crisis is expected to bring the country nearer to the adoption of communism. The tactics are sound because destructive revolutions always are forced more and more to the left. France has had much experience.

FEDERAL CHISELING IN AVIATION.

No more disappointing news could be found in the financial columns at the turn of the year than the alarming statement that while the air lines during the year 1937 carried more passengers, mail, and express than in any year of their history, they face the possibility of eventual insolvency. A study of their books by the auditors showed clearly that this unsatisfactory financial condition was the direct result of low mail pay. That this condition should not exist may be gleaned from the following facts.

About ten years ago congress decided that the United States should have an air mail service to promote commercial activity. The necessary legislation provided for expenditures on air lanes and aircraft, the sole duty of which was "to fly the mails." At the end of the first year it was found that the cost would be something over $1 per airplane mile.

About the same time several private companies were experimenting with passenger transportation with little success, because trafic was scarce and the fares very high. Then it was suggested that if the private ships would carry the mail there would be benefit to both branches of air service, and another law was passed which fathered the air mail contracts. At the same time routes were laid out, many of which had very poor passenger or mail possibilities. Did the government subsidize the passenger trafic, did the passenger trafic subsidize the government mail, or did both subsidize the villages that could not pay their own way in air mail stamps or passenger fares? The cost of mail service per airplane mile was cut to 45 cents.

After the cancelation of the air mail contracts at the beginning of the Roosevelt régime the cost again soared to more than $1 per airplane mile—plus the lives of twelve army flyers. Then further legislation restored the status quo, but the air mail rates were to be steadily reduced until the sale of stamps was paying for the service. This continued chiseling on the part of the government has placed the private airlines in their present unenviable condition.

The commercial air lines of the United States have been responsible for the advances in aviation that have given the country its present air domination of the world's sky routes as well as its primacy in military and naval aviation. They are entitled to better treatment.

Editorial of the Day

STILL BLAMING "BIG" BUSINESS.

[Peoria (Ill.) Journal-Transcript.]

Jackson day addresses by President Roosevelt, Attorney General Cummings, Assistant Attorney General Jackson, Secretary of the Interior Ickes, and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace disclose the continuance of a systematic campaign against "big" business, and criticism of New Deal opponents who are charged with confusing the administration's war on a "minority" of bankers and industrialists with "all business."

In short, critics of the administration have been indicted for scare-mongering. As a candidate for President in 1932, Mr. Roosevelt declared that the federal government was on the road to bankruptcy, that federal prodigality and extravagance endangered "the entire banking, savings, and insurance system of the country." At that time our national debt was 22 billion. In his budget message to congress last week Mr. Roosevelt said: "The increase in the gross public debt during the year amounted to $2,646,070,239, bringing the total gross debt on June 30, 1937, to $36,424,613,732."

In his Jackson day address Saturday President Roosevelt said he cast his first presidential vote for Theodore Roosevelt whom he regarded a better Democrat than his opponent [Bryan]. Bryan advocated "50 cent dollars." Mr. Roosevelt put the country on a 59 cent basis by virtue of the Thomas amendment to the agricultural adjustment bill of 1933.

Business is admittedly in a precarious condition largely because of lack of confidence by the private investor. The causes for that lack of confidence are immaterial for the purposes of this comment, but it is a good guess that the ruthlessness of "big" business is not an upsetting cause.

Many industrialists are seeking to break the ice of skepticism in the general business situation. Some of them are putting more men to work in an effort to check the recession.

But while they are attempting to nurse business back to normal, President Roosevelt, Secretary Ickes and his department of justice are renewing their threats and inciting the public to make war on everything that is "big." Nor does the explanation that only a "minority" of business is crooked justify administration broadcasts which leave the people in doubt as to what concerns come under the official ban.

It might also be said that a "minority" of all professions and avocations are crooked. Ministers of the gospel are occasionally electrocuted or sent to prison. Lawyers and doctors occupy prison cells and even politicians run amuck. For years the New Deal has been railing against "big" business. Sometimes it is only 10 per cent of the whole that is vicious; sometimes it is only 4 per cent, or 4 inches of the President's experimental dog.

In any case, it is not in the public interest to harass all business by continually harping on the iniquities of the "minority."

IRONICAL TALE.

Margaret McLaughlin, a war nurse who has been confined to her bed at the Edward Hines hospital for seven years, likes to dream of eating fancy meals in fashionable restaurants. She imagines the hors d'oeuvres and the satisfying soups and breast of chicken under glass, and roast duck with green grapes, and the souffles and salads, and her friends, knowing this, send her menu cards from various restaurants to help nourish her dreams.

Recently she entered a contest arranged by a chain restaurant management for the best letter of praise of one of their establishments. Miss McLaughlin closed her eyes and dreamed of the restaurant where she would like to eat. Then she described her dream in a letter. Yes, she won the prize. Unfortunately, the prize was a week of free meals—in one of the restaurants.

THE TURN OF THE YEAR.

Before the florist's little shop
Faces that brighten, quicken, sing.

And fettered folk at once set free,
Throngs that pass to and fro
Loosed from winter's lethargy.

Suddenly she jerked back into reality. 'Good gosh,' she cried, 'did they spell 'lether' that way then?"*

CAREER OF A SINGER.

As outlined by Opera Basso Desire Defrere to George D. Mills in discussing a young singer:

"She comes on, she is very nervous, she misses her cue, she takes two breaths, the orchestra plays on, and her season is finished."

HEIGH HO FOR ARMAGEDDON!

[After reading about the gift of $50,000 to the Oriental institute for excavations in Armageddon.]

I'm off for Armageddon,
So saddle up my steed
And load my trusty derringer
And whatever else I'll need.

So up we go, and off we go
For millennial loot,
With a little technical advice
From the good old institute.

Perhaps at Armageddon
When the saints go marching in,
I'll shiver in my boots because
Of my own original sin.

But even at Armageddon
When the warring legions clash,
I know I'll be safe and sound—
With fifty grand in cash.

VARICOSE VEINS INJURE CIRCULATION.

FROM the pumping station—the heart—blood reaches the tissues by way of an elaborate and beautifully designed system of pipes. The arteries carry the outgoing supply and the veins turn back the used fluid to the central station. A modern plumber cannot fail to stand in awe at the efficiency of the "layout" with the size of each conduit accurately adjusted to its load. Then there are by-passes, valves, and traps.

Disease may affect these channels; for example, inflammation [phlebitis] of the veins, hardening [sclerosis] of the arteries, and a common complaint—enlargement of superficial vessels—called varicose veins.

What causes these pipes to dilate and become tortuous? In the first place, we must recall that the blood returns to the heart from the extremities—arms and legs, feet and hands—via definite routes, some of which lie just beneath the skin, while others are imbedded deeply within the muscles. Whenever pressure is applied to a venous thoroughfare high up in the body the fluid below accumulates. This has the effect of distending the vein and—inasmuch as the epidermis offers little resistance—it thus may stand out as a visible cord. Release the pressure and it slumps. Look at the back of your hand. Lower it and observe how the veins fill. Now raise the hand higher than the head—whereupon they collapse promptly.

If one's work demands that the body be held in an upright position—as when standing for a goodly portion of the day—after a while, if the occupation is continued long enough, the walls of these canals may become weakened. They may be overstretched to the point where they will not revert to normal.

The fact that we stand erect—instead of walking on all fours—means that the circulating medium must make its way back to the heart by running uphill—almost perpendicularly. That process is aided by the fact that some veins have valves which may be likened to locks on a canal system. Once the blood is above a valve it is held there—prevented from flowing downward—while muscular movements push it further forward toward the heart. But unfortunately, if the pipe is stretched, some of these "checks" will not fit, backward leakage occurs, and more pressure is thus loaded on the one below. After a time, in a typical case of varicose veins, all the valves are destroyed or rendered ineffectual.

Until a few years ago treatment was entirely surgical. An effort was made to remove the vessels; that is, those that had become worthless, and thus throw the circulation into the deep structures within the muscles. More recently, however, two or three plans have been devised which will bring about obliteration of the superficial set and force the current back through the deep veins—in suitable cases. By means of solutions which are somewhat irritating the blood of the veins is made to clot, remain in that place, and finally the cordlike affair thus created may absorb, at least in part. Many have been relieved by this procedure and many more no doubt will be in years to come.

On the whole the method is to be preferred to other types of treatment. Ulcers usually heal rapidly, as the deep mains within the muscles are sufficient to carry all the blood. Elastic stockings are helpful should these superficial ducts begin to enlarge, and sometimes a supporting bandage of this sort is all that is required.

BURSITIS EXPLAINED.

R. T. writes: What is calcification of the subacromial bursae? Is it curable? If not, what damage will it do in later years?

REPLY.

Bursae exist in large numbers in various parts of the body. They are saclike affairs lined with cells which secrete fluid. They function so that ligaments, tendons, and other structures can move freely and with a minimum of irritation. The subacromial bursae in the region of the shoulder joint when injured or infected may become calcified. When a diagnosis of bursitis is made and the factor has been found to be an injury, the outlook for recovery is good. If there is evidence of hemorrhage into the sac and aspiration or drainage is done early the prognosis is likewise favorable. Rest is important and, of course, removal of foci of infection. When bursitis [inflammation] does not respond to conservative treatment resort may be had to manipulation with the patient under anesthesia. Surgical removal may be required in cases of long standing.

FINGERS AND BREATH.

R. V. writes:

1. What causes the tips of the fingers to taste bitter at times?

2. Occasionally my breath has a medicine taste, like iodine. I do housework and keep my hands clean.

REPLY.

1. Fingertips come into contact with many substances that have a bitter taste. But why put the fingers into the mouth? The practice is unhygienic.

2. If your breath is bad you may be suffering from some form of indigestion, constipation, or the like. Look also to bad teeth, pyorrhea, infected tonsils, and pus within the sinuses.

TOO MANY RED CELLS.

A. R. writes: What is polycythemia? Can anything be done to remedy the condition?

REPLY.

Polycythemia, known also as Vaquez's or Osler's disease, is usually chronic and is characterized by an excess number of red cells in the blood. Sometimes the malady appears in more than one member of a family. It is not common. X-ray treatment of the long bones slows down the formation of blood cells. This affords temporary relief. Phenylhydrazine hydrochloride is used because of its effect in destroying red cells. The drug must be administered cautiously, as it is toxic. Fowler's solution is also recommended.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY VICENTE ALBANO PACIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANILA.—More than two years after the Philippine constitution became effective and the Philippine commonwealth was inaugurated, the islanders have just discovered that they are not only short of an educational program but also are far from able to begin one after discovering the discrepancy.

The commonwealth government has been far too busy with the more material things like taxes, trade reciprocity with the United States, the impending American export taxes on Philippine export, and politics, to have paid much attention to the vaster problem of education. Philippine economics has been studied by a joint American-Philippine commission, and Philippine elections have been held or postponed, but it is only now that education has come to bat. The results are far from satisfying.

Only this week the superintendent of schools in Manila announced that some 2,535 seven year old children who had been clamoring for admission to the first grade since last June will have to postpone going to school until next school year. This number is composed of only those who have been insistently seeking admission. There are, of course, thousands of other children who are of school age but who have not sought admission.

After spasmodically attempting some sort of emergency financing since last June, the Manila council in December finally was able to put its hands on the 27,000 pesos necessary for a semester's outlay for the 2,535 children. But the hitch came when no suitable school buildings could be procured or rented.

The situation in Manila is not even typical of the situation in the provinces—in the latter, the proportion of children out of school is much greater because most of the outlying villages have no schools whatever. For years now the bureau of education has estimated that fully one-half of the Filipino children of school age have never been in school. This estimate is based on the last census, taken in 1918, and on the conservative figure that the total Philippine population is 13,000,000. A new census is still being taken, but the Philippine army, on the basis of the figures it has obtained in the course of carrying out its universal military training program, places the total population at 17,000,000. There is thus a possibility that instead of only 1,500,000, there are some 2,000,000 Filipino children of school age who have never had schooling.

Not only are there too many children out of school, but of those who can secure accommodation fully three-fourths drop off before finishing the primary grades. Since the vehicle of instruction is exclusively English, a completely foreign tongue, the net profit of a Filipino pupil from the first two or three years of schooling is too meager to be of any practical value.

Alarmed over the situation, the chairman of the commonwealth assembly's committee on public instruction this week published an article calling attention to the backwardness of the commonwealth's educational program. He warned that Bolivar's lament, that while he sought liberty for his people he only obtained independence from Spain, might have to be repeated in the Philippines. He pointed out that the government is incapable of purveying instruction to all—a duty which a democracy must look upon as a measure of self-preservation.

Partiality and laxity, he charged, combine to render the private schools incapable of supplementing the work of the public schools. He declared that the government taxes non-sectarian private schools but exempts religious schools. This partiality is even more surprising, he said, when one remembers that the religious schools are backed by big landed estates, and that the impending purchase by the government of these estates will place a big amount of cash in the hands of the religious orders, which will naturally choose to invest in education, where they are tax exempt.

On top of this failure to equalize taxation among private schools, the government, he alleges, is lax in its supervision over instruction. As the National Council of Education has repeatedly pointed out, aliens, who have no sympathy with the political ideals of America and the Philippines, try to steep Filipino children in the social sciences. Textbooks used in many private schools are also so edited or abridged as to omit or minimize the study of Filipino heroes or of the Philippine revolution against Spain.

Starting rather late, the Philippine commonwealth has a hard nut to crack in its educational problem, if it must follow the constitutional injunction that it shall provide universal primary education.

CITIZENSHIP STATUS.

Chicago, Jan. 9.—[Friend of the People.]—My brother and I, who were born in Canada, came to this country in 1919 at the ages of 6 and 5 respectively. We came with our parents, who legally entered by paying head tax at the port of entry. My father took out a first paper, but never acquired second papers. I recently discovered this and am dubious as to whether my brother and I are citizens.

1. If not, what steps should we take to acquire citizenship?

2. Will my approaching marriage to an American born citizen automatically make me a citizen? A. M.

1. Under the facts stated, the inquirer and her brother are not citizens of the United States. In order to become citizens they should apply for naturalization in their own right.

2. No. Under the act of Sept. 22, 1922, the citizenship of married women on and after that date is independent of that of their husbands. However, under the provisions of that act, as amended, an alien who marries a citizen of the United States or whose husband or wife is naturalized after 12 noon, eastern standard time, May 24, 1934, may apply for final papers without a declaration of intention [first paper] and is required to prove three years' continuous residence in the United States. The inquirer, if and when she marries a citizen, may submit an application for final papers. An application blank may be obtained at room 718, New Postoffice building, Chicago.

PARALLEL.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—The following passage from "The Hundred Years," by Philip Guedalla, depicts Paris in 1848:

"Starvation was the danger; and a strange economic aberration had done its best to concentrate starvation in the capital. Well meaning politicians, faced with the miseries of unemployment, succumbed at once to the temptations of a rash policy of public works without the customary pretense that any of the works were of the slightest public utility. The Ateliers Nationaux, a group of ill-conceived establishments where unskilled labour found useless employment at the general expense, were an erratic gesture by which the Republic sought to indicate its kindly feelings towards the working class.

"For there was a growing danger that their paths might diverge, since it was manifest that the mere proclamation of a new form of government had failed to satisfy material demands. True, it had fully met the aspirations of the middle class, which were wholly political; but it had no power to feed hungry men, and their unsatisfied demands might open a new phase of revolution. That was the worst of revolutions: They were so easy to begin, but it was always difficult to say precisely when they would end. The middle class had struck its blow, deposed the King, installed its favourite politicians, and was prepared to intimate that the revolution was over. Not so the hungry workmen, for whom the revolution was only just beginning. That sad divergence ranged the Republic on one side with those dashing young republicans in yellow gloves, whose views on property were strictly orthodox, and the grim disciples of the Republique Sociale on the other. The contrast was pointed out by the indignant Engels; and Marx, perhaps, was right when he reviled the "radical bourgeois" as the worst enemies of Socialism, since their opposition deprived it of the undivided support of the masses and set the stage for a disastrous conflict between pure democrats, who were prepared to peg the revolution at its present level, and still purer Socialists, who were resolved to carry it one glorious step farther.

"A half-hearted effort to postpone the issue, to provide employment within the limits of the existing economic order, had inspired the institution of the Ateliers Nationaux. But the sole result was to draw starving men to Paris, where 117,000 unemployed performed useless tasks at a cost of 170,000 francs a day, an expensive means of concentrating half the discontent of France in the mean streets of a single city. This Danegeld might procure a breathing space for the new Republic. But it could not go on; and at the first attempt to end it, the economic revolution flamed out."

Substitute "the labor unions" for "the middle classes" and "the Brain Trusters" for "those dashing republicans in yellow gloves" and you have America of today. HISTORICUS.

DISCIPLINE FOR THE BUMS.

Oak Park, Jan. 12.—Of course, I do not know what to do about these thousands of men rotting in the relief shelters without self-respect, but I wish to make some suggestions for consideration of better informed persons. I suggest that city officials borrow a captain, twenty sergeants and some experienced privates from the regular military establishment to bring some order out of the chaos. These soldiers could establish new standards of cleanliness and they could, I am sure, work out some plan to discipline many of these men into self-respect. The soldiers could at least stop all these fellows from shuffling along. The soldiers could make them stand up, walk steadily, and speak promptly. OTTO MCFEELY.

NATIONALIZATION.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 8.—The character of Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska never was shown so well to the public as it was in two incidents reported recently by the newspapers. The first, when he is reported to have said, practically to the President when in conference about big business, "Treat 'em rough." The second was when an investigation of TVA was discussed, "Have a friendly committee . . ."

The conclusions I reach after more than a quarter of a century in observing what Senator Norris has done in political life are that he has been the greatest force towards nationalizing the country, and that the troubles which the railroads have are due very largely to his attitude towards big business generally, the roads being the easiest to conquer.

The talk about nationalization of the coal mines was the first we had, and that was about thirty years ago. We have the start of it in the Guffey coal law. When the operators are properly regimented the final step will be taken, that of going into government ownership. The railroads are prepared and all big industries will be next in line.

Unless there is a mighty protest we shall be in the same kind of a box that Germans are in. Very few of us know that Nazi is the contraction for Nationalist, just exactly what we are becoming ourselves. The results will not be different, for we have lots of that class here now.

Every citizen should become a real reformer by hammering some sense into the heads of his congressmen. Don't let them be yes-men. HENRY F. GILG.

THE "VERY POOR."

Chicago, Jan. 13.—In your article of Jan. 12 entitled, "Federal Housing Approves Fifty Tenants," you quoted the administration as saying that it was their aim to help the "very poor" classes of people. You then listed those visited by THE TRIBUNE reporter as making $22 to $27 a week, $1,500 to $1,600 a year, and another as having an income of $27 a week from a steady job.

My family of three is getting along nicely on my income of $1,200 a year and we live in one of the best neighborhoods on the south side. We do not class ourselves as "poor." Neither have we a new 1937 automobile, such as is pictured standing in front of a building formerly occupied by one of these "poor" families. JAMES GIBSON.

SALES TAX COMPLAINT.

Chicago, Jan. 10.—The papers are saying much about the state's great loss through tax frauds. Are they saying anything about the excess taxes collected from the people? Every time a merchant collects a 1 cent tax on a 15 cent sale he boosts the tax rate to 6⅔ cents on the dollar, an increase of 100 per cent over the 3 cent rate. When he collects a 2 cent tax on a 44 cent sale, 1 cent of this tax applies to 33⅓ cents of the sale, this leaves only 10⅔ cents on which to apply the other cent. This boosts the tax rate to 9 cents on the dollar.

A TAX VICTIM.

THE NOTION COUNTER.

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 11.—For a long time I have been thinking the best and surest way to bring about a great reform and to insure a clean government from Washington would be to force congress to propose an amendment to our constitution requiring all our congressmen and Presidents to be elected for life or make them ineligible to reelection. This same law should obtain for the governors and representatives of all the states. FENTON M. SANGER, M. D.

POLICE UNCOVER A FAINT ART THAT WINS FAIR LADIES

Richard Kammler and Clarence Walker fainted on too many doorsteps in Albany Park yesterday. After the seventeenth or eighteenth call from startled housewives who had given them money to get back to a starving and freezing family, the police went out to round up the ailing pair.

Kammler didn't appreciate the police solicitude. "You can't do this to me," he told Policemen Henry Meyers and Chester Dijeski when they seized him at Addison street and Pulaski road. "Why, I'm a property owner."

Wherewith he pulled from one of the pockets of the two suits he was wearing a deed to a five acre chicken farm, with house, outbuildings, and chickens, near Demotte, Ind. He showed receipts that he had made the last payment on it six months ago.

Tell It? He Boasts It!

The police have met property owners before, and weren't impressed. They said to tell it to the sergeant. Kammler did. He even boasted about it.

At the station it was found that Kammler had $3.45 in pennies, and a counterfeit quarter a crook had slipped him, in a tobacco sack. He had half a dozen tobacco sacks waiting for more pennies. On really good days he'd fill them all. Walker, who was learning the racket, had only $2.05 in his sack.

Both said they live at 12 South Peoria street, where their living expenses amount to about 35 cents a day as top flight beggars. It can be done on 15 cents, they said. Of course, there is carfare to and from the north and northwest side areas which they find the richest fields for picking.

Average Is $1 to the Block.

The method is the same along all of the type, Kammler told Sergt. William Cox. They make back doors with a plea for a few pennies. They average about a dollar to the block. They waste no time in jails if a fine will free them. The fines that come intermittently are part of the business overhead.

In 1932 Kammler bought his farm. Two years ago he married and took his bride there. She brought her mother along. Kammler is 44 years old, frugal and his ambition now, he said, is to pile up enough of the ready to retire.

"Once you've got the money, nobody asks you how," he observed sagely to the sergeant.

He Loses His Savings.

He had nearly enough to go back to the farm for good a couple of weeks ago, he added, but had it stolen from him by a dirty bum in a flop house, he declared.

Kammler planned that Walker, who is 39, should buy a farm near the Kammler place so they could be neighbors in their retirement.

The two look like family men. They are lean, but Sergt. Cox said they keep that way by walking and climbing backstairs.

Kammler's police record dates to 1918 when he was arrested as a thief. He was taken again in 1921 for a similar crime and got a year in the Wisconsin penitentiary that time. He has been fined in a half a dozen states, but has made it a rule to pay the fine promptly and "get right back to work."

New York Expenditures in 1937 Over 835 Million

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—New York City spent $835,113,704 in 1937, Controler Joseph D. McGoldrick reported today. Its revenues for the year were $1,398,131,057, of which $783,431,057 represented receipts from real estate and other taxes, state school aid, dock rents, and other varied sources. As of Dec. 31 there was a cash balance of $83,424,312 in the city treasury. The state's contribution to the city's school system was $54,992,494.

RELATIVE OF SLAIN WOMAN HELD IN N. Y. IN DOUBLE KILLING

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—A middle aged man who was related by marriage to Mrs. Celinda Waite, one of the victims of the double murder at Elmore N. Y., last Wednesday, was found living in a furnished room here today as Nassau county detectives were preparing to open a widespread search for him.

The man, John Reo, admitted that he knew Mrs. Waite, but denied any knowledge of her murder. After he had been questioned for an hour he was taken to Mineola, N. Y., for further questioning by District Attorney Edward J. Neary.

Four bullets found on an improvised rifle range at the rear of a gasoline station which Reo formerly operated at Lynhurst, N. J., were being examined to see how they compared with the slugs that killed Mrs. Waite, 59 years old, a widow, and a young friend, Miss Jeanette Schuellain, 18 years old, in the Waite home.

OWNERS REMOVE SLOT MACHINES IN LAKE COUNTY

Lake county was entirely cleared of slot machines, pinball games, and, presumably, handbooks, last night as the result of an organized gambling cleanup by the operators themselves, and officials.

The cleanup order was issued several nights ago by Sherif Lawrence A. Doolittle. His order came after he had received a formal complaint signed by twenty-seven citizens, headed by Joseph Mull, a Democratic leader.

Waukegan and Libertyville, where the pinball games have been licensed, joined the cleanup. The handbooks that closed were in Waukegan, North Chicago, Highwood, Antioch, and Half Day.

POLICEMAN FIRES ON BURGLARS.

Policeman John Imber, 2737 North Spaulding avenue, was aroused from sleep yesterday morning by the crash of glass. He fired two shots from his bedroom window at two men trying to steal a fur coat from a display below. He missed.

VINCENT ASTOR BUILDS TINY RAIL LINE FOR GUESTS

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Jan. 16.—A trial run over the 850 foot long miniature railway built on Vincent Astor's St. George's estate "Ferry Beach" for carrying guests from the boathouse was made yesterday by the chief engineer of the Bermuda railway, H. Kitchen.

The 3 ton passenger car is electrically driven. It is 14 feet long and four to six passengers are seated. There is also a freight car for carrying baggage.

The railway, which is reported to have cost thousands of dollars, is complete to the last detail, including building, housing, and rolling stock.

STOP THINNING HAIR at these three "danger zones"

NATURE is calling for help when your hair begins to thin at the temples, frontal point or crown. Thinning hair at these points, or dandruff-infected, itchy scalp should warn you that your scalp needs immediate attention to prevent further hair loss. Heed these positive warnings and have The Thomas' correct the scalp disorder that is causing your abnormal hair loss.

Thomas' scalp treatment ends dandruff, stops falling hair, and grows hair—not by old fashioned hit or miss means—but by an exclusive method which is exact in every detail. The treatment is scientifically sound in that it supplies the functioning stimuli of which the scalp has been deprived through modern living conditions. It thus results in healthy, growing hair.

The Thomas' will not accept you for treatment unless they feel reasonably sure that you will obtain satisfactory results. Call at the nearest Thomas' office today, where a skilled trichologist will gladly examine your hair and scalp without charge. He will frankly tell you what Thomas' treatment can do to help you retain or regain your hair. Remember—the examination is free. If you do not live near a Thomas' office, write for the Free booklet on the care of your hair and scalp.

AUTO CRASHES SAFETY ISLAND; 1 KILLED, 3 HURT

City Employe, Hit by Car, Dies of Injuries.

A woman was killed and another woman and two men were slightly injured last night when they were standing on a safety island on the southwest corner of Roosevelt road and May street.

Mrs. Catherine Flores, 67 years old, 4502 South Laflin street, the woman who was killed, was waiting for a street car, as were the others, James Jacobs, 36 years old, 2026 Roosevelt road; Joseph Neal, 28 years old, 726 East 39th street, and Anna Patterson, 23 years old, 4711 Prairie avenue.

City Employé Killed.

As they stood in a group an automobile ran upon the island and knocked them down. Mrs. Flores was hit squarely. All were taken to the County hospital. The driver, John Dunn, 22 years old, colored, 3352 Indiana avenue, was arrested.

Joseph Johnson, 62 years old, of 49 West 114th place, an employé of the city water pipe extension service, died in the South Chicago hospital last night after being struck by an automobile at Mackinaw avenue and 89th street. The driver was Reuben Bailey, 29 years old, of South Bend.

Mrs. Hazel Townley, 33 years old, 4534 North Wolcott avenue, was probably fatally injured and her husband, William F. Townley, 30 years old, was cut and bruised early today when their automobile which he was driving hit a center light post on the Outer drive at 47th street. They were taken to the Chicago hospital where it was said Mrs. Townley's skull probably was fractured and she was internally injured.

Truck Driver Killed.

Clarence Davis, 45 years old, was killed instantly yesterday morning when his truck was struck by a westbound South Shore Line passenger train at the Wilson crossing several miles west of Chesterton, Ind. Davis lived in Hobart, Ind.

Bernard Krowitz, 70 years old, of 2641 North avenue, died early yesterday of injuries incurred Saturday night at Talman and North avenues when he was struck by an automobile driven by Charles Lipovetzky, 23, of 1009 North Oakley boulevard.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 54 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since the first of the year. Of these, forty-one were killed in Chicago where 686 were injured in the same period.

Mary Fleming Is Engaged to Eugene McVoy

BY JUDITH CASS.

FROM New York comes an announcement of an engagement that is of particular interest in Chicago, that of Miss Mary Louise Fleming, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Frederic S. Fleming, 1 Lexington avenue, New York, to Eugene Joseph McVoy, son of Mrs. Fortunato Jerace of Rome, Italy, and Chicago, and the late Eugene J. McVoy of Chicago.

The Rev. Dr. Fleming is rector of Old Trinity church at the head of Wall street, New York, one of the most famous churches in America, and a former rector of the Church of the Atonement here. His daughter and young Mr. McVoy have been friends since they were children, for both families have summer homes at Pentwater, Mich.

Miss Fleming, who is a niece of Mrs. John Y. Meloy, visited her fiancé's sister and brother-in-law, the Sidney S. Gorhams, in Winnetka during the Christmas holidays. Miss Fleming is a graduate of the Mary C. Wheeler school in Providence, R. I., and attended Wellesley college before entering Barnard college where she is now.

Mr. McVoy studied in Switzerland and was graduated from the Choate school before entering Princeton university. No plans have been made for the wedding because he is just in his freshman year in college. His mother, Mrs. Jerace, is in Sicily now, but plans to return to Chicago in March or April. Mrs. Walter Kohler Jr. of Kohler, Wis., and Mrs. William H. Fellowes of Libertyville are Mr. McVoy's other sisters.

Mary Jeanne Tansill To Wed Harry S. Vested.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weems Tansill gave a small tea yesterday to announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Jeanne, to Harry Sommer Vested, the elder son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Vested of Chicago.

Miss Tansill, who studied at Northwestern university, is a third generation Chicagoan on both sides of the family. Her mother is the former Helen Shaw, daughter of the late Gilbert B. Shaw, Chicago banker.

Mr. Vested prepared at the Roxbury school for Yale, where he was graduated in 1933. He is in business here. The wedding will take place April 23.

Settlement to Sponsor Salzburg Guild Program.

The latest musical event to be announced for the near future is a charming, gay, and different Valentine gift that the board of directors of the Eli Bates Settlement house is sending to Chicagoans—a performance on St. Valentine's night, Feb. 14, by the Salzburg Opera Guild. The bill planned for that night will be in lighthearted Valentine tradition, with Ibert's "L'Angelique" and Rossini's "Matrimonial Market" sharing the program.

The Guild, which many Chicagoans have heard at Salzburg music festivals, will be making its first visit to Chicago, coming here from New York for a week's engagement at the Auditorium. One hundred artists will be in the troupe. "L'Angelique" will be heard for the first time in the United States during the Guild's tour.

Miss Carol Bush, president of the Eli Bates board, and younger board members are taking over the active duties of preparing for the benefit. Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, Mrs. William Spencer, Mrs. Howard W. Fenton, Mrs. Edward M. Bertha, and Mrs. Charles D. Frey will assist in an advisory capacity. Mrs. Robert McKenna, Mrs. Phelps Kelley, Miss Virginia Winston, and Miss Frances Jeffery and others will take turns in a ticket office to be opened at 612 North Michigan avenue.

Arts Club to Honor Noted Flutist at Dinner.

Flute soloists seldom are heard so arts club members are looking forward to a program by Rene LeRoy following a dinner the club will give for him next Sunday at 7:30 o'clock. Mr. LeRoy is well known in Europe, being director of the Instrumental quintet of Paris. His répertoire includes not only the compositions for the flute of old classical masters but a number of works written especially for him by contemporary composers.

Mrs. Raymond L. Redheffer, under the name of Dr. Ruth Alexander, will lecture on "Shall Man or the State Survive?" this morning at the Town Hall in New York. Mrs. Redheffer is starting a career as lecturer on economic and political subjects now

Weird Prints Are Accepted by Shoppers

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If there's one month in the year that needs whimsey it's January. Shoppers wandering around the arrays of new clothes and hats during this month of midwinter snatch gleefully at funny prints. Wearing an outrageously funny print is really the best fashion for these days.

So the printed efforts of a French artist who apparently designs with his tongue in his cheek are going like wild fire. So far, six of his drolleries are tip-top successes. You'll find them in daytime and spectator sports dresses, dinner and dance gowns as well as hats. And the increasing numbers of shoppers who make their own clothes will find bolts of the stuff.

The colors are especially interesting, the grays are lovely French that go with chalk white designs; the flaming red and a clear orange are slick background colors for the spectator sports clothes. There are all kinds of black backgrounds with gay designs for daytime ensembles.

The most fantastic print is the one this illustrator suggests for a cocktail or dinner costume. Weird saffron colored birds with legs, bleary looking bats, cloudy, wavering designs of positively unheard of animals cavort before your eyes, giving the slightly fuzzy look of everything diffused by a convivial glow.

One print has intimate sketches of 1900 ladies, from stuffy, old fashioned corsets to the swaddling long skirts of a screamingly funny tennis outfit of that era. A stunning Victorian print has a design of a pale long hand holding a nosegay of lovely flowers.

Summer Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan have announced the engagement of their younger daughter, Nancy, to George Bronson Farnam, son of Mrs. George B. Farnam of New Haven, Conn. The Forgans gave a party in their home in Lake Forest Saturday night to tell some of their daughter's friends the news.

Mr. Farnam's mother was here for the announcement party and so was a classmate of Miss Forgan's at Bennington college, Miss Dorothy McWilliams, of Pasadena, Cal. The wedding is to be next summer.

Miss Forgan went to Chatham Hall and now is at Bennington. She is spending the two month winter field period at home working with the citizens' schools committee; her specialty is social studies. She made her début year before last. Mr. Farnam went to Andover and Yale, where he was graduated in 1936.

Maternity Center Unit.

The South Shore Service league of the Chicago Maternity center will give a tea for new members from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon in the home of Mrs. Otto L. Mast, 6833 Cregier avenue.

Miss Anderson Finds a Critic for a Change!

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Any one who is bracing himself this morning for the type of enthusiastic, incoherent review which has appeared in this column after nearly every one of Marian Anderson's Chicago recitals will be relieved to know that today's piece falls into quite a different category. For the great Negro contralto, singing at the Auditorium theater yesterday under Northwestern university auspices, let herself in for what we wittily call constructive criticism.

In the Schubert group which opened the program Miss Anderson not only reminded us of her familiar virtues but also implanted in the breast of at least one listener a suspicion that the singer is sometimes mistaking mere expressiveness for good art. A high fortissimo was used too often and a pure, untroubled legato too seldom—perfect examples of how sheer beauty of sound may be sacrificed to the desire to emphasize the dramatic content of a song.

The emotion of art is supposed to be emotion remembered in comparative tranquility. No matter how many holes may have been shot through this theory, it still holds at least one grain of undamaged truth.

Although Miss Anderson is a good program builder and seldom permits too many songs which are similar in tempo or in mood to come together, the general pace of the afternoon became much too deliberate. This may be accounted for by the over-mysticism of her interpretations and by the intrusion of an immense solemnity of manner into virtually every item on the program.

Not all songs need be taken so seriously and sung with such intensity. Certainly the elfin and the humorous have their place in music. So have carelessness and abandon, so long as the carelessness and abandon spring from invisible artistry and are not the real life qualities which go by these same names.

None of these dyspeptic remarks is intended to obscure the following facts about yesterday's recital: [a] Schumann's "Der Nussbaum" has not been done better here since the Indians moved out; [b] Miss Anderson's singing of the spirituals had that immensely vital quality which stirred us so profoundly during performances of the first "Porgy," and [c] this contralto's mezzo-piano, in a legato phrase, posed once again the question as to whether a more ravishing sound can issue from a single human throat.

Kosti Vehanen played the piano accompaniments. A capacity audience applauded deafeningly throughout the afternoon.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

No matter what the weather, a family washing dries in no time in the new, gas heated dryer we saw at the home furnishings show the other day. This handy contrivance is made up of twenty-four metal rods, rubber tipped, on which the clothes are hung. They provide ninety-six feet of clothesline space.

The rods are surrounded by a fireproofed curtain. And below them is a perforated container through which the heat comes when you light the gas. Even on a damp day a family washing will dry in two hours or less.

The next step is a gas heated ironer, which makes light work of finishing the laundry. It's not expensive to run, either.

Good Morning!

Here is a charmingly acted and sung, and very poorly titled production from the foreign studios. Some of the captions are misspelled. Some are ungrammatical. All are awkwardly worded. But this failing doesn't seriously detract from the picture as a whole.

"The Viennese Nightingale," depicts the adventures of a young prima donna who rises from obscurity to heights of success and popularity. From these she is temporarily brought down because of foul play on the part of a man she trusts. But, in the end, all is well. Therese regains her standing in the affections of the public and the heart of the young and ardent musical director from whom she has become estranged. . . .

Marta Eggerth has a lovely voice, a winsome personality and a world of grace and poise.

She has splendid cast support and the film has been effectively staged, costumed and directed.

You will love the music.

Business Women.

The Lake Shore Business and Professional Women's club will hold a meeting this evening to be preceded by a dinner in the Brevoort hotel.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

"The perfume of her hair" is a line all the romantic novelists and poets dust off at least once in every love story. You might get the idea that fastidious women always have their hair beautifully scented with their most exquisite and expensive perfumes. As a matter of fact, they don't.

Hair, the very day after a shampoo, acquires an odor of its own. Perfume of the usual variety wouldn't be at all successful.

But the fact remains that sweetly scented hair is highly desirable. It is, like a soft voice, a lovely thing for a woman to have. And that's why it's good news that there is a perfume made expressly for the hair. It's delightful—and not expensive.

This hair fragrance is in two odors, both of them charming and both of exactly the right soft, haunting quality a hair perfume should have.

This perfume comes in a sensible little bottle, with an atomizer, and is to be sprayed on after the hair is set. It imparts a delicate, alluring fragrance that will charm you and the man you dance with. In addition, it serves to a certain degree as a haid dressing.

If daintiness is a quality you desire—and you should—a little bottle of hair fragrance should be on your dressing table. ELEANOR NANGLE.

INSTALMENT I.

PURSUED.

Back and forth in the rock-gaunt tight valley of Polvosa a lazy dry wind shuttled. Starting from the south slope, it idled down to the valley floor and lolled across the railroad spur into Christian City.

Getting a grip on the powdered fetlock deep dust of the wide main street, it raised a tall dust devil which it dragged the length of the town. Skittering down the shallow canyon between the weathered and somnolent false front buildings, it forced the hipshot saddled horses at the tie rails to saw over on the other hip, swing their heads, and close their eyes. Too, in passing it stirred the batwing door of the Sunflower saloon, caromed off the next buildings, and took the street out of the town and over the bridge.

The stream beneath the plank bridge it ignored and raced up the north slope of the valley in a whistling gust. Almost to the top of the ridge it was nearing the road when a horseman at a hard gallop topped the ridge in brief skyline and in another moment slanted down into its blinding buffeting maelstrom of driven sand.

He was through it in two seconds, but when he emerged he was hatless. He did not even look back. The leggy sorrel under him was patched with sweat and dust, and worked with a kind of coasting weariness as he took the downgrade to the bridge.

Approaching the thick timber of the bridge, the rider pulled the sorrel into a trot and reined off the road to the river bank.

It was a steep slope down, perhaps twelve feet.

The rider said, "Take it."

The sorrel yawed a couple of times, then squatted on his haunches, spread his fore legs, and went over in a rush of small rock and dirt that slopped into the shallow creek on the heel of the rocketing splash. The weight of a bigger man would have foundered the sorrel, but it pulled out of the slide shaking its head and answered to the rein that guided it into the black block of shadow under the bridge.

Stopped, the sorrel shook its head and lowered it to drink, and it got two mouthfuls before it was pulled up.

"Easy," the rider said gently.

Observed now, there was a curious contradiction in this man. He could hear the thundering racket of many horses coming down the hard packed hill road he had just left, yet there was no excitement, no relief, no expectantcy in his eyes, in his face. He was young, under middle height. He unbuttoned the gaudy red shirt he wore. He pulled the tails out of his trousers just as the thunder hit the bridge above, and even then he did not pause only squinted in a kind of patient unhaste as he said, "Steady," to his sorrel while he took off his shirt.

When he twisted around in the saddle to untie his lean duffle bag the pennants of dust had powdered his thick chestnut hair and shoulders. Naked from the waist up now, he was again a contradiction, for he looked larger, far solider. His bones were small, his shoulders capped with a deep roll of muscle that coiled and sawed with every finger movement. The chest was deep, high, a dead white against the tanned V of his neck, which itself was scarcely darker than his still, lean, smooth face.

From his bag he drew out a clean blue shirt and put it on. As soon as it was buttoned he stuffed the red shirt in the bag and tied the bag behind the cantle.

Now he said again to the sorrel, "Steady," and drew his feet from the surrups. Gingerly he stood up on the saddle and reached for a bridge beam overhead. Once he had steadied himself, he used his free hand to tuck in his shirt tail, to ram it down past the crossed shell belts and sagging holsters from which worn cedar handled Colts jutted. Then he put his other hand on the bridge beam and swung clear of the saddle. He spoke to the horse, which turned upstream and began walking the creek. Soon it was lost from sight around the bend.

Left hanging, the man did a handover to the edge of the bridge where this beam jutted out to form a support for the railing. He swung himself up and looked down the road. In the street of the town a hundred yards down the road he could see the blue uniforms of the cavalry troop still mounted. He smiled fleetingly and sat down on the beam jut again and built a cigaret with deft, absent fingers. He had smoked it down when he heard again the thunder of the horses approaching.

Smashing out the cigaret, he put the butt in his shirt pocket, swung down again under the bridge, traveled the beam a yard, then swung up again in the space between the joist and planks.

This time the horses pulled up on the bridge.

A man's voice said, suddenly, "Look at that bank, lieutenant!"

"Took to the water, huh?" another man said gruffly. "All right, we'll do the same."

"That's a hell of a drop," the first man said.

There was a pause in the conversation, then the lieutenant said, "Take the other bank. It flattens out down there forty yards or so each way."

"Up or down?"

"We'll split. Take half the men, sergeant. Put at least two in the creek and the rest of you ride the bank. I'll do the same."

"Yes, sir. How far?"

"Till you get him," the lieutenant said curtly.

As soon as they were out of sight the slight figure swung up onto the bridge and headed for town.

Shouldering through the doors of the Sunflower saloon, he walked straight to the bar. The room was not crowded, a dozen or so men at the gambling tables, four or five bellied up to the bar. All talk, even the click of poker chips ceased at his entrance. The fat and placid looking bartender saw him, smiled uneasily, and said: "What'll it be, Poco?"

"Beer," the slight man said, and added, "Did the army leave a hat here?"

The barkeep went up front to the back bar and came back with a worn, dust colored hat which he tendered the small man. About to speak, the bartender glanced over the slight man's shoulder and saw a puncher heading stealthily for the door.

"You," the barkeep called.

The puncher stopped dead in his tracks and looked guiltily at the barkeep.

"If you tell the marshal he's here," the bartender said slowly, "you'll pay for every smashed mirror and window and chair in the bar. And, if I got anything to say about it, you'll pay for the marshal's buryin', too."

"Not me," the puncher said quickly, earnestly. "Hell, all I want to do is get out of town."

The slight man's gaze sought the puncher's in the mirror. "Sit down," he drawled quietly. "Nothing's going to happen."

"Yes, sir," the puncher said and tiptoed back to his seat.

The slight man sipped his beer when it came, his eyes dreamy, indifferent. The sodden silence he ignored, as if used to it. But he was not so unobserving that he missed the movement behind him when a man got up from a poker table and crossed to the bar beside him.

This man was tall, made taller by the black frock coat of the gambler's profession which he wore. He ordered a whisky and looked at the slight man, and over his thin, handsome, and amiable face came an amused look. Under the wide black mustache he smiled a little. "Hello, Poco. Trouble?"

"No," the slight man said.

"You took long enough," the gambler growled.

INSTALMENT XLIX.

THE WEDDING.

James drew up.

"Looks like a bad smash. I'll just see if they want any help," he said.

He and Jock got out.

But Sally was looking at the car. She looked once, and then she looked away. When James came back she said,

"He's dead, isn't he?"

James said, "Yes. They're all dead." And then, "How did you know?"

"The car," said Sally in an odd, stiff voice—"Hildegarde's new car."

"She was driving. She ran full tilt into the lorry. It's what they planned for us, you know."

"He was mad," said Sally. "Ambrose was mad. O, James, he was!"

"Sally, do you mind so much—about him?"

"I think I'm glad," said Sally.

* * * *

Sally looked at herself in the glass, because she wanted to see what Sally Elliot looked like. She thought she looked rather nice, veil thrown back, eyes soft and happy, mouth red and smiling. And a little bunch of orange-blossom on either side amongst the dark curls. She was very glad that she had dug in her toes and refused to have a halo.

She turned round with a sigh, but it was a deep breath of contentment. She was married to James. They had been married for just three-quarters of an hour. Bonzo and Daphne had lent their house, and Jocko had given her away. She had cut the cake and been kissed by all her friends. James had not kissed her—yet, but he had looked at her as she came up the aisle. "O, James, don't ever stop loving me that way!" Deep in her own heart Sally knew he never would. When you know a thing like that, it makes you feel quite, quite happy. Sally was quite, quite happy.

Daphne and three bridesmaids helped her out of her wedding-dress, all talking at once. Two of them were Daphne's sisters, and the third was Elspeth Reid. Sally hadn't the slightest idea what they were talking about. They all said "Darling" a great many times, and told her she was marvelous. The wedding was marvelous. The weather was marvelous—and April could be too icy. James was marvelous. Everything was marvelous.

Sally was going away in green, to match her eyes. Violet and Lilian said she looked marvelous and slipped out of the room.

"I've forbidden rice, but I'm sure they'll get hold of some," said Daphne in a distracted voice. "Elspeth, catch them! Tell them I definitly forbid it! But it won't be the slightest use—they're as wild as hawks."

"Darling, I must have some, too," said Elspeth in her drawling voice. "Don't say I didn't warn you, Sally." She went out, leaving the door open.

"O, Sally!" said Daphne. "I do hope you're going to be very happy. I always thought I should hate any one who married James, because he used to be in love with me, you know. You don't mind, do you?"

Sally kissed her.

"I don't mind in the least. We'll both love you."

"Yes," said Daphne. "Of course it's not quite the same thing. But if he'd got to marry any one, I'd rather it was you—I would really. Darling, you were marvelous!" Then, as James looked round the open door, "James, doesn't she look marvelous?"

James didn't say anything. He looked at Sally, and Sally looked at him. Then she laughed and said,

"Those horrible cousins of yours are loading up with rice. We shall get it down our necks and in our shoes, and it will fall out of our pockets and give us away for weeks and weeks. We must be as quick as lightning. Is everything ready?"

James nodded. He kissed Daphne.

"Thank you for our wedding, Daph. Thank Bonzo, will you?"

Sally kissed her, too.

"I've loved every minute of it."

Then she took James by the arm.

"Run!" she said.

Good soup may be made from any kind of dried beans or peas. Methods all are similar, but seasonings vary with the type of legume being used. It would be hard to find a more satisfying soup than black bean or split pea soup. A big bowlful of either, with plenty of crackers or croutons and a vegetable or fruit salad, makes a luncheon adequate for housewife, school child, or office worker.

Black Bean Soup.
[Serves Six to Eight.]
2 cups dried black beans
2 quarts water
1 medium onion, sliced
2 stalks celery, diced
¼ cup butter
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery salt
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 tablespoons flour
1 sliced hard cooked egg
1 lemon, thinly sliced

Soak beans overnight, drain, and add water in recipe. Cook the onion and celery in a little of the butter until lightly browned, and add to the beans. Bring to a boil and let simmer, covered, for about three hours, until the beans are soft, adding more water from time to time as necessary. Rub beans through sieve, reheat, and add seasonings. Melt remaining butter and stir in the flour. Gradually add soup mixture and cook several minutes longer until the soup is smooth and thickened. Garnish each serving with a thin slice of hard boiled egg and a slice of lemon.

Split Pea or Lentil Soup.
[Serves Six to Eight.]
2 cups split peas or lentils
3 quarts water
2 inch cube salt pork
½ cup chopped onions
1 cup chopped celery and leaves
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
Salt, paprika

Soak split peas or lentils overnight in water to cover. Drain and add the three quarts of water and the salt pork. Simmer covered for three hours or until the peas or lentils are tender, adding vegetables during last 15 minutes. Put mixture through a sieve and add gradually to flour and butter, which have been blended. Cook until the soup is thickened and add seasonings if needed.

Some persons prefer to use puréed tomatoes or tomato juice as part of the liquid when making lentil soup. Tomatoes are a good flavor accent for the blandness of lentils.

Baked Bean Soup.
[Serves Four.]
1 can baked beans, or
2 cups home baked beans
1 small onion, chopped
1 quart water
1½ tablespoons butter
1½ tablespoons flour
Salt, pepper

Cook beans and onion gently in water until soft. Put through sieve. Melt butter, add flour, and add soup mixture gradually. Cook until thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper. A few drops of Worcestershire sauce may be added. A cup of tomato purée also may be added.

Savory Lima Bean Soup.
[Serves Four.]
2 cups cooked dried lima beans, ground or sieved
1 quart milk
2 tablespoons chopped carrot
2 slices onion
2 tablespoons butter or bacon fat
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon chopped parsley

Heat milk in double boiler and add bean pulp. Cook carrot and onion in butter or fat for several minutes until lightly browned. Add to soup, cook 10 minutes, and strain. Add seasonings and parsley.

Plan 'In Old Chicago' Benefit with Seats at an All-Time High

Every seat in the Apollo theater has been purchased for the 8:30 p.m. performance of "In Old Chicago," on Jan. 29, for benefit of the Grove House for Convalescents, in Evanston. The picture opens on Jan. 27. Premières already have been held in New York and Hollywood.

The Apollo seats approximately 1,200. The regular prices will range from 75 cents to $1.65. All seats have been purchased at these prices by officials of the Grove house, headed by Mrs. John Butler, president, and including Mrs. Howard Fenton and others.

According to Mrs. Butler, mezzanine boxes of six seats each will be sold at $70. This will mean $11.67 a seat, said by movie people to be the highest price for a ticket to a regular performance of a picture play. The Hollywood première last Friday had set an all time high at $5 a seat. The rest of the seats, Mrs. Butler said, will be sold probably at $3 and other prices.

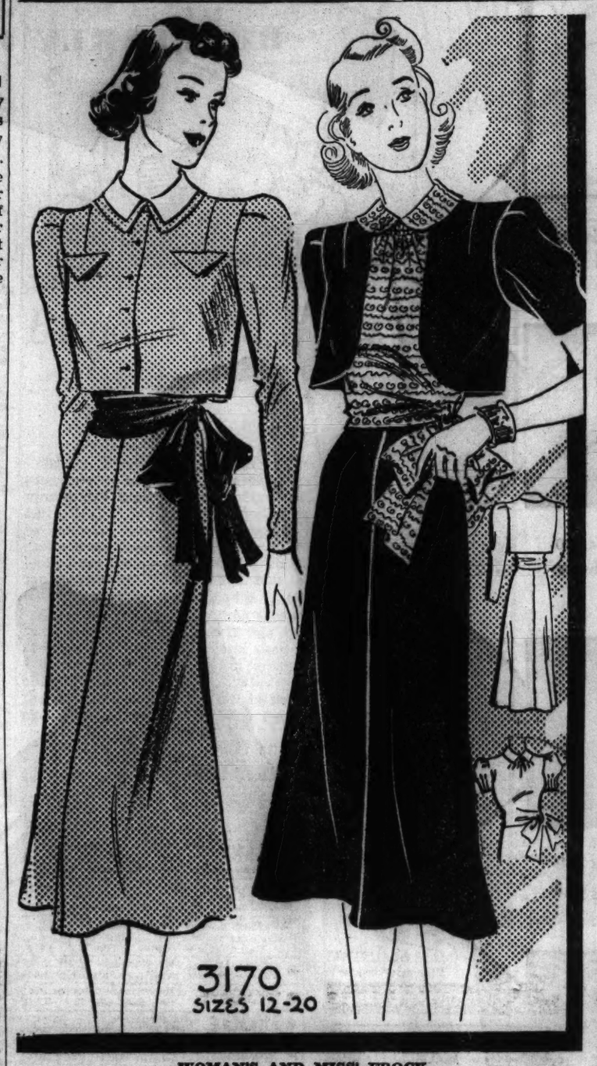
Boleros the Thing Today!



WOMAN'S AND MISS' FROCK.

Boleros have taken the style world by storm. They were popular some time ago and, like all good modes, are playing a return engagement. For one thing, they flatter many types of figures. If you're a trifle overweight the darling little jacket will make your waistline seem slim and your hips trim. If you have a perfect silhouette, the frock with its boloro will enhance its loveliness.

There are two ways you may make this frock. The sketch at the left shows a simple dress with an overjacket that buttons down the front all the way from the high neckline. The collar is attached to the dress, as are the sleeves. The bolero has two trim pockets and extends just to the waist. Below it is the wide contrasting sash that marks the waistline. The skirt is paneled for flare and the shoulders are squared for breadth.

The scheme at the right is quite different. The bolero is brief and doesn't extend all the way to the middle. The waist of the dress is a gay print and has sash ends. Both these dresses are good models for the present midseason and also will serve you well when spring arrives.

Style No. 3170 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 16 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material, with 1⅝ yards of 39 inch contrasting.

Habits Form as the Result of Repetition

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

"But mother doesn't make me do it that way. She always has me put my night clothes like this when I go to bed."

"Very well, dear," said Betty's aunt, who had come in to look after Betty while her mother and daddy were away. "Now jump into bed and I'll put out the light."

Children are little people of habit, and a little scene like this makes us realize it. The first six or seven years are important habit forming years, and parents and children gain a great deal if the routines can be smoothly established.

If our child has formed some undesirable habit, let us determine if we can why this habit has developed. Is this act the result of a natural need which he is not otherwise receiving?

Habits are the result of repetition By himself, a child will repeat only those things which he finds pleasant and interesting. This fact is the basis on which we must work for the formation of good habits.

But habits are not formed readily, and are forgotten quickly unless we see to it that opportunities for their repetition are many. Here is the value of regularity.

WEDDINGS

The wedding of Miss Louise Conn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Deans Conn of Glencoe, to John Williams Branch Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Williams Branch of Evanston, will take place on Jan. 28 at 8:30 o'clock in the home of the bride. Miss Conn attended the Goodman School of Drama and Mr. Branch attended the University of Washington in Seattle. Tomorrow afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Branch will entertain for Miss Conn at a tea in the Georgian hotel in Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Gottlieb, 5520 South Shore drive, announce the approaching marriage of their daughter, Bettie Marie, to Sidney G. Katz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Katz of Rock Island. The ceremony will take place in the Shoreland hotel on Jan. 23. After a honeymoon in California and Mexico Mr. Katz and his bride will be at home in Davenport, Ia.

'Aida' Winds Up San Carlo Bill; On Tour Today

BY CECIL SMITH.

A cogent and resounding performance of Verdi's "Aida" at the Auditorium theater last evening brought to a close the San Carlo Opera company's fortnight in Chicago. This morning the members of this versatile traveling troupe are off for ten days of sold out houses in Detroit.

One new member of the company goes on tour for the first time. She is Rozsika Szabo, former checkroom girl of the Auditorium theater, who has been given a place in the ballet.

Business has been good in Chicago. Capacity houses have been frequent this past week, and a horde of disappointed fans was turned away last night. Wherefore the company hopes and half promises to return for another engagement in April.

Norina Greco undertook the rôle of Aida last night for the first time with the San Carlo company. Her voice is warm and emotional, and she sings with remarkable assurance and style for a girl of 21. She still has a long way to go before the "O patria mia" aria will come up to scratch, but the rest of her performance is already well calculated.

Maru Castagna, Aroldo Lindi, Stefano Ballarini, and Harold Kravitt were a strong group of associates. Mr. Lindi was in admirable voice, and sang in the triumphal scene one of the best high C's I ever expect to hear.

Miss Castagna's Amneris is superb dramatic singing in the true contralto manner—a manner almost nonexistent hereabouts. You will hear more of her, for she is one of Fortune Gallo's most striking finds.

ILLINOIS SYMPHONY

The Illinois Symphony orchestra program conducted by Albert Goldberg in the Great Northern theater yesterday afternoon was devoted to Russian and Italian music by living composers. Anatol Rapoport, Chicago pianist, played the third Rachmaninoff concerto and Mr. Goldberg directed the orchestra in Leone Sinigaglia's overture, "The Quarrelsome People of Chiozzo," and Ildebrando Pizzetti's "Concerto of Summer."

The Rachmaninoff Third is a work in which awe-inspiring difficulties of execution face the pianist at every turn. Mr. Rapoport's choice of this concerto for his debut with the symphony seemed to indicate both a serene confidence in his technic and a desire to test himself by playing the hardest piece he could find.

It did not come off as well as he must have hoped, though much of the performance was meritorious. While the young pianist does not lack dexterity, he has not developed the right kind of brittle, percussive tone for this music. Many of his chord passages sounded rather pasty and squashy, and he was prone to blur thing further by overuse of the pedal. Despite these defects he is well on the road toward virtuosity, and will be a good pianist when he clarifies his tone.

Mr. Rapoport suffered from a wretched orchestral accompaniment, tonally flabby and generally uncertain. Earlier in the day the Pizzetti concerto had gone better. It is a glowing, poetic evocation of the moods of summer, composed and orchestrated with masterly craft.

Home for Convalescents.

Mrs. Edgar D. Smith and Mrs. Charles P. Davis will be hostesses at the monthly meeting of the Chicago Home for Convalescent Women and Children at 11 o'clock this morning in the Woman's Athletic club.

"South and North had a bidding duel, with West entering the bidding with spades at one point but then holding his peace until North arrived at five clubs. This, West doubled. South ran to five hearts, which West also doubled.

"West led the diamond king, which was trumped in dummy. The ace of hearts was led, then a spade. East hopped up with the ace. Declarer ruffed, drew the outstanding trumps, and led the diamond ten. West won with the ace and led the spade king. Declarer ruffed with his last trump and led the jack of clubs. West covered and was permitted to hold the trick. West then led his diamond eight, which was taken with declarer's queen. Declarer then led a club and finessed against the ten spot, thus fulfilling his contract. Was it consistent with good play for West to cover the diamond ten with his ace?

"Sincerely yours,
J. L. P.—Washington, D. C."

I must say that I am quite confused by the account of the play. My correspondent predicated his description on the statement that declarer had played with great skill. I am afraid that I am becoming nearsighted. At any rate, I can't see it!

Aside from West's remarkable kindness in needlessly taking the diamond ten with the ace, the question that is hardest to answer is: Why didn't West, after he was permitted to hold the club queen, merely cash his remaining spade queen for the setting trick? Declarer was out of trumps, so he couldn't have stopped this. I don't like to spread disillusionment, but I am afraid the hand was pretty badly played by declarer, as well as by West.

On ruffing the opening diamond lead, declarer should have led a spade from dummy. East probably would play the ace, which would be ruffed. Another diamond, ruffed with the trump ace, should be followed by another spade ruff, then trumps should be drawn. Now the club jack should be led and, when covered by the queen, taken in dummy, which by this time would be down to the 10-9 of spades and the A-K-9 of clubs. The spade would throw West on lead. He could cash the diamond king, but then would be forced to lead a club from his 10-7 into dummy's A-9.

Historical Society Displays Models of an Indian Family

With Sitting Bull's own rifle upon his knee, a synthetic Indian whose head was modeled from Sitting Bull's life mask has been placed on display in the Chicago Historical society's headquarters. The Indian sits in front of a birchbark tepee, facing a squaw whose fringed buckskin dress is decorated with elks' teeth. From inside the tepee peeks a papoose.

Piano Duo to Be Guests at Tea This Afternoon.

Brightening an otherwise quiet winter Monday afternoon is a tea the English Speaking union will give at the Casino for Ethel Bartlett and Rae Robertson, well known piano duo, who are appearing tomorrow night at Orchestra hall. Miss Bartlett, who in private life is Mrs. Robertson, will play at the tea.

Mrs. Arthur A. Small is in charge of arrangements for the tea. She has asked a group of women to assist so that every one who attends will meet not only the guests of honor, but enough other persons to insure a pleasant time. Pouring tea will be Mrs. John J. McDonough, Mrs. Thomas I. Underwood, Mrs. Solomon B. Smith, Mrs. Frank H. Woods Jr., Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, and Mrs. Thomas S. Tyler.

Miss Bartlett and Mr. Robertson are guests of Mrs. Frederic W. Upham during their Chicago visit, which will last until Thursday. Mrs. Upham will give a small supper party for them tomorrow night after their concert, which will be the fourth in the Musical Arts series of the Adult Education council.

Jean Fardulli, Greek baritone, will give a concert at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the Civic theater. The Greek consul and Mme. Demetrius Benetatos will join Mr. Fardulli and a group for a small supper party afterward.

Harriet Monroe Collection on Exhibit at U. of C.

The president and board of directors of the Renaissance society of the University of Chicago announce the opening today of an exhibition of manuscripts and letters of poets of England and America belonging to the collection bequeathed to the university by the late Harriet Monroe. The collection comprises manuscripts and letters received by Poetry magazine during 25 years, and will be on view daily and Sundays from 2 to 5 o'clock until March 15. Most of the items in the collection refer directly to material in Miss Monroe's autobiography, "A Poet's Life," to be published immediately.

It is difficult to realize that two such young and attractive women as Mrs. R. Martin Stevenson and Mrs. Arthur W. Rogers could be trustees of a school, because a trusteeship usually carries with it the mental image of some one older and more settled. They are, however, two of the four young trustees of the Mary C. Wheeler school of Providence, R. I., and today they are giving a luncheon at the Arts club for Miss Mary H. Day, principal of the school, and Mrs. F. Snowden Skinner of Providence, president of the alumnæ association.

Miss Dorothy Stirling, Miss Eloise ReQua, Mrs. Raymond E. Durham, Miss Nancy Forgan, Miss Barbara Hess, and Mrs. Stevenson's sister, Mrs. Ambrogio Cassinerio, are some of those who will chat informally with Miss Day at the luncheon. This afternoon there will be a tea for Chicago alumnæ at the Fortnightly at which Mrs. Stevenson will show movies of the school.

The annual meeting and luncheon of the Dearborn Seminary Alumnae association will be held at 11:30 o'clock this morning at the Fortnightly club. Miss Frances W. Whedon will speak. Mrs. John G. McDonald is president of the alumnae.

Hand That Is Rough and Red Is Inexcusable

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate Inc.]

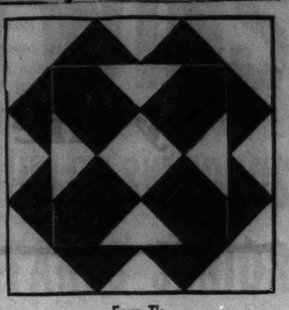
When your hand is extended in greeting, is it a hand you're proud to show, with skin that is soft, smooth, and beautifully young, or is it chapped, rough, or reddened? Even in the cold winter months there is no excuse for a rough or reddened skin, as there are such excellent lotions and creams for smoothing away any roughness and keeping the hands in lily white condition. Don't get the idea if you've had your weekly manicure you have done your duty by your hands and that you can exhibit them with pride. The manicure is essential, but the use of a lotion or cream after every hand washing is imperative if the skin is to be kept presentable.

If you have spent the time necessary to being well groomed otherwise, time given to the complexion in order that the skin may be radiant and lovely, to the hair that it may shine lustrously, to the figure to keep it streamlined, you won't want one false note to mar the whole lovely effect with hands that are not what they should be in so far as hand beauty is concerned.

Use a hand lotion several times a day, always after washing the hands, and at night before going to bed. Once a week use a nourishing cream generously at night, and don gloves so that the skin may be benefited by the softening effect of the cream left on during the night. This trick is an unusually good one that requires little, if any, effort on your part. There are special gloves with a cream content for this purpose. However, loose cotton gloves will serve the purpose.

If nails are brittle and break easily, take steps to encourage longer and stronger nails. To accomplish this, soak the nails for ten or fifteen minutes each night in olive oil which has been slightly warmed. There also are herbal nail tonics for nightly application which will act as nail reconditioners.

Letter T Lends Itself as Design to an Old Quilt



Four T's.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The letter T lends itself to a great number of interesting quilt patterns, all of them pieced. "Four T's" also is known as the "T Block" or "Imperial T." It is one of the oldest pieced patterns and was evolved from an effective pattern known as "Shoo Fly." Pieced in red and white, the blocks are set together with five inch bands of white between blocks, and surrounded by a five inch border and a one-half inch bias binding. This block is excellent for a young man's or boy's room. The finished coverlet contains 30 pieced blocks and measures 90 by 107 inches.

Women Voters Will Hear Senator O'Mahoney Today

Introducing the "Thistledown Tuftless"

REGULARLY $22.50

Ticking of Imported Belgian Damask—woven into a handsome plaid design exclusively for Carson's. It comes in green, beige, and blue with a roll edge that guards against sagging, slipping, or wrinkling.

Upholstery of First-Cut Linter Felt—compressed under 14,000 pound pressure, it forms a soft, luxurious sleeping surface. It adheres to the sisal beneath it so securely that no tufts are needed.

Java Sisal Pad Over Springs—it weaves itself into the cotton felt and anchors it more firmly than tufts could. There is also a crowning pad of sisal across the center where the greatest wear comes.

Exclusive Sleeper Edge on Sisal—it is anchored to the spring unit by an exclusive method, overlapped and sewn all around, and tacked through the center. No shifting is possible—no tufts are needed.

Double Cone Innerspring Unit—especially designed for Sleeper tuftless mattresses, with double cone, double-knotted springs made of re-tempered steel wire. A re-enforced crosswise helical holds springs firmly in place without destroying their free-floating action.

The Famous "Perfect Sleeper," Shown Above Provides the Model for This New Mattress

The main complaint about mattresses is that the tufts or buttons make them uncomfortable and lessen their wearing qualities—but for years manufacturers have tufted their mattresses because they knew no better way to anchor springs and upholstery together. Several years ago Sleeper, Inc., found the way—and smooth, buoyant, tuftless mattresses like the famous "Perfect Sleeper" have swept the country with their popularity. The basic construction principle is simple: springs and upholstery are held together within the mattress instead of by tufts which pierce it through from the surface, weaken the ticking and destroy the resiliency of the springs. Result is an incomparably restful mattress . . . but absence of tufts is not the only reason why the "Perfect Sleeper" has been adopted so enthusiastically into millions of homes. From a construction standpoint, and in materials used, it has the perfection that only fine craftsmanship and high standards can give it. The "Thistledown Tuftless" is modeled closely upon it. Study this new mattress from the inside out. Then come in and compare it with the "Perfect Sleeper"—both mattresses are on our floor today.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The largest Chicago hocky crowd of the season—15,562 paid—last night saw the skilled and rapid Toronto Maple Leafs frustrate, perplex, and astound the Blackhawks. The score was 7 to 2, the second occasion this year in which the Toronto fellows have whizzed seven pucks past Mike Karakas, Hawk goalie who tries, oh, so hard.

It may be said, however, that most of Mister Mike's humiliation last night came in the third period when the Leafs made five goals while the Hawks were moved up in a rather pathetic effort to catch up. Even so, Mike was very clumsy on at least two scoring forays.

The sad outcome ended a success spurt which had seen the Hawks in a week's span beat the Montreal Maroons and tie the New York Americans, Montreal Canadiens, and those same Leafs on their own rink.

March Starts the Scoring.

Mush March, assisted by Doc Romnes and Paul Thompson, started the scoring after 5:21 minutes of play. The Leafs took over virtually all production thereafter. Pep Kelly, a Hawk last year, tied the score in 10:42 of the first period with the first of his three goals. Sylvanus Apps put the Leafs ahead in the second period and in the third period Kelly scored twice and Thoms, Apps, and Jackson once each. The best the reeling Hawks could do during the barrage was to send March in for a goal at 16:11, Romnes and Dahlstrom drawing assists on the maneuver.

Jackson, Apps, and Drillon, ace scorers of the league, sought to show a bit of class at the outset but were tamed in 5:21 when the Chicagoans put on a dazzling maneuver to score the first goal.

Toronto Ties It Up.

Thomson retrieved the puck and shoved it to Romnes. As Romnes neared the blue line he passed laterally to March. Mush picked up the puck and swerved in to slash the goal past Broada from close in.

After Chamberlin had been sent to the penalty box, the Chicagoans pressed with a power play and Boll and Kelly got behind the moved-up Hawks. As the pair dashed along their right boards Boll passed left to Kelly who tied the score in 10:42.

Drillon and Jackson got the puck out of a mêlée on the Hawk back boards to Karakas' right and Drillon shot across the mouth of the cage to Apps, who was uncovered ten feet to Goalie Mike's left. He had an easy time pitching it in for the goal.

Karakas Goes to Sleep.

Early in the third period Thoms glided down the ice and let loose a shot from just inside the blue line. To the amazement of all, it sailed past Karakas into the cage, making the Hawk goalie look quite unskilled. The time of Thoms' solo effort was 4:59.

In 11:25 of the final period Kelly broke out of a Hawk barrage near the Leaf net and dashed unmolested the length of the rink to score a solo. In 15:54 Kelly again got in on top of Karakas after taking a pass from Hamilton and, after feinting Karakas out of the cage, easily lifted the puck into the open net for his third and his team's fifth goal of the game.

In 16:11 March scored his and the Hawks' second goal on assists by Romnes and Dahlstrom, but ten seconds later Apps scored goal No. 6 for Toronto, assisted by Drillon and Jackson.

Then, just as the final siren sounded, Jackson tossed in Leaf goal No. 7. Karakas, though punch drunk and exposed to pneumonia by the breeze created by flying pucks, was able to leave the rink under his own power.

Birger Ruud, Olympic ski champion in 1932 and 1936, yesterday convinced his older brother, Sigmund, last year's American champion, that he can't be beaten on the Norge Ski club's slide near Cary, Ill. As 20,000 looked on, Birger made two spectacular jumps of 172 and 181 feet to win the class A championship.

Sigmund, however, finished second, soaring 161 and 168 feet in his two attempts. It was the second time in a Norge meet that Sigmund finished close behind his illustrious brother, the first occasion occurring six years ago when Birger jumped 183 feet.

Bietila Is Third.

Paul Bietila, University of Wisconsin sophomore, who holds the unofficial Norge slide record of 201 feet, placed third with leaps of 168 and 166 feet. Nils Eie of New York, world's intercollegiate champion, finished fourth with jumps of 161 and 164 feet. Walter Bietila, brother of Paul, who is also a student at Wisconsin, was fifth, jumping 153 and 167 feet.

The soft condition of the snow prevented the skiers from approaching the official slide record of 194 feet, which was established by Alf Engen, former world's professional champion, three years ago. The snow, packed on the huge steel slide and hill after last Friday's storm, softened under the warm sun shortly after the meet started and resulted in many spills.

Two Suffer Minor Injuries.

Two skiers suffered minor injuries in spills. They were Ben Erickson of the Forest Preserve club of Chicago, who competed in class B, and Bruno Tasson of Ishpeming, Mich., who participated in the class A competition. Both lost their balance after leaving the slide, landing heavily on the hill and breaking their skis.

Roy Bietila, 14 year old brother of Walter and Paul, captured the class C championship. Bietila soared 145 and 160 feet. The senior championship went to Ole Besseberg, Chicago veteran, who had leaps of 121 and 132 feet. The summaries:

Loyola and De Paul Await Wednesday Night Battle Call

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Loyola and De Paul basketball teams will go through a final polishing process today and tomorrow in preparation for their game Wednesday evening at the Chicago Stadium under the sponsorship of the Catholic Youth organization.

Both teams are expected to go into the game in good condition. De Paul has plenty of time to recuperate from its strenuous eastern tour and Loyola has had a comparatively light schedule in the last week or so.

Everything that has gone before has been just a warmup for Wednesday's game so far as the students of both schools are concerned. Of course, both teams would have liked to have beaten Purdue, but, now that that powerful opponent has come and gone, De Paul and Loyola are more concerned about beating each other than mourning over defeat at the hands of the Boilermakers.

That Game Last Year.

Both teams are aiming at a repetition of a spectacular basketball show such as was put on last year, though De Paul, of course, has an opposite outcome in mind. Since the beginning of the present season Coach Tom Haggerty of De Paul and Coach Leonard Sachs of Loyola have been developing teams that may be capable of putting on a performance such as their predecessors did last year, when Loyola won, 46 to 43, in two overtime periods.

De Paul has been forced to build an entirely new starting lineup, for all of the first string men were graduated. However, with Clem Naughton, Bob Neu, Ed Norris, Pat Howlett, Tom Cleland, Kiernan Crowley, and several others, the Blue Demons have assembled a squad that usually puts up a fast, hard game. Loyola was more fortunate than De Paul in having a strong nucleus at the start of the season. Wibs Kautz and Mike Novak, two of the most important factors in last season's Loyola-De Paul game, will be on the floor again Wednesday evening. Bill O'Brien, Bill Lynch, and George Hogan have combined with these veterans to form a smooth working team.

Sharpshooters on Both Sides.

The Loyola squad has been weakened somewhat by injuries. In the game with Carnegie Tech Bob Brennan was put out of action with a fractured thumb. There is some probability that he will be able to start against De Paul, but just how efficient he'll be is a question. The reserve strength of the Loyola squad also was reduced when Jack Driscoll was forced off the squad temporarily with a foot infection. Driscoll, a former Fenwick High school star, was one of the fastest and most aggressive men on the squad.

But, in spite of losses by injury and earlier defeats, both teams will go into Wednesday's encounter ready to put on a good show. It probably will be a high scoring game, with sharpshooters such as Neu and Kautz on the floor. Then, too, the spectators always like to see the maneuvers of a gigantic center such as Novak. Mike serves as a rallying point for his teammates when there's nowhere else to pass the ball.

N. U. SEEKS FIFTH IN ROW TONIGHT AGAINST PURDUE

Minnesota Five Tackles Illinois.

Northwestern's leadership in the Western conference basketball race is the stake tonight when the Wildcats meet Purdue in the Boilermakers' new fieldhouse. Purdue crowned its dedication ceremonies Saturday evening by whipping Wisconsin, 40 to 34, and this score, by comparison with Northwestern's victory over Wisconsin, is the only reason to predict that the surprising Wildcats may upset Purdue.

Northwestern now has won four Big Ten games. This equals its number of conquests last season. Two of these games, the victory over Ohio State, 35 to 34, and Saturday's upset of Indiana in an overtime period, 32 to 29, have been the nucleus of the Wildcat record. Both were achieved by last minute rallies.

Purdue Must Win.

Purdue's only defeat this season was received a week ago when Illinois delivered a stunning blow, 51 to 43. Purdue now practically must win tonight to be assured of remaining in the battle for the championship. The odds favor Purdue because of balanced attack and speed. Lack of speed is Northwestern's most serious defect.

Purdue doesn't meet Michigan this year, for which it may be thankful considering the pace the Wolverines have set and that Michigan gave Purdue one of its four lickings last year, 31 to 16. Incidentally this was the same score by which Michigan defeated Minnesota at Minneapolis Saturday night and ended whatever hope the Gophers may have entertained of successfully defending their share of the 1937 title.

Gophers Last Chance.

Minnesota meets Illinois tonight at Champaign. This was originally believed to be one of the high points of the 1938 campaign, the battle of the 1937 champions, but while Illinois still has a fair opportunity to climb to first place, having won two games and lost two, only a remarkable rally by Minnesota can get the Gophers more than a first division berth.

Michigan has offensive strength in John Townsend, one of the best forwards in the conference, and in the scoring ability of Rae, Fishman, and Beebe. In winning the first game of the series with Illinois at Ann Arbor, 45 to 37, the Wolverines held the Illini to their lowest score in Big Ten play.

Michigan vs. Wisconsin.

Michigan plays Wisconsin tonight with every prospect of adding another victory to its list. Michigan may be the undefeated leader of the conference should Purdue whip Northwestern.

Iowa engages Indiana at Bloomington in the return game of that series. The Hawks won the first, 48 to 39, but the Hoosiers must be given the call tonight.

The Michigan-Northwestern game Saturday night at Patten gymnasium easily will top the conference schedule regardless of the scores tonight. Only one other Big Ten game, Illinois at Ohio State, is scheduled.

Bears Rally to Win, 19-10, Over All-Stars

Houston, Tex., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Chicago Bears, western division champions of the National league, soundly thrashed a group of All-Stars, 19 to 10, with a second half spurt before 6,000 today.

Trailing 3 to 0, the result of Tillie Manton's forty-four yard second period place kick, the Bears returned to the field in the third period and rushed over a touchdown, then climaxed the assault with two more scores in the fourth quarter. The All-Stars passed to a fourth period touchdown. Keith Molesworth led the Bear attack. One of the touchdowns resulted from his return of a kickoff. Taking the ball on his own 2 yard line Molesworth raced ninety-eight yards for the score.

Coffee to Isbell Scores.

At the start of the third period the Bears intercepted a pass on the All-Star 36 yard line, and with Nolting and Molesworth carrying the ball they drove to the 10 yard line. Molesworth added six more and Sam Francis went over for the score.

Buzz Buivid passed to Gene Ronzani for 35 yards and the second touchdown early in the fourth period.

Pat Coffee, Chicago Cardinal passing star who took a terrific thumping during the game, connected with passes to Cecil Isbell and Ramsey for thirty-eight yards, advancing the ball to the Bear 3 yard line. Another pass to Isbell gave the All-Stars a touchdown. Molesworth's return of a kickoff then clinched the game.

REDSKINS WIN, 14-13

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 16.—[Special.]—The Washington Redskins, professional football champions, scored a 14 to 13 victory over the Pacific All-Stars in Kezar stadium today. A steady drizzle fell throughout the game.

Sammy Baugh, the Redskins' great passer, blocked an attempted place kick by Ernie Smith after the All-Stars' second touchdown in the fourth quarter to assure victory.

About a Bookkeeper.

The bookkeeper in our office is a strange fellow. He weighs 175 pounds, is nearly six feet tall, and really is a healthy looking gentleman, but he loses about sixty days a year on account of illness. It seems that he has a year around cold and you can hear him sniffling all the time. There are three reasons for his condition: When it rains he comes in without rubbers, raincoat, or umbrella. When it's cool he doesn't wear a coat. On sunny days he wears a raincoat, and on warm days he wears a sweater. None of us could understand his peculiar apparel until the other day when I wrung a confession from

HELEN SWIERKOS TAKES SENIOR GIRLS' HONORS

Sister First, but Is Disqualified.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Bob Heckenbach, Northwest Skating club, raced over the two mile course at Garfield park yesterday to write his name as the twenty-first winner of a pair of Silver Skates.

In 1917 Art Staff won the first Silver Skates Derby. Since then Chicago skaters, some of them national and international champions, have followed this routine path to fame. Forty-two thousand, second largest crowd in history, saw the races.

Heckenbach yesterday conquered a field of eleven others who represented as capable a group of contestants as ever heard the starter's gun. And in winning he skated a brilliantly conceived race.

Heckenbach Stays Behind.

Harley Herbrechtsmeier, winner of the gold medal prize for the senior leading the greatest number of laps, set the early pace. Heckenbach stayed behind him until the race had passed the eighth lap. Then Heckenbach's teammate, Clyde Batza, took the lead and speeded up the tempo of the race. Bernie Cannata, one of the favorites and a former Silver Skates champion, was caught unprepared by the sudden change in speed and fell behind the leaders.

With less than two laps to go Heckenbach sprinted on the back stretch and opened a gap of ten yards which he maintained to the finish line. Cannata finished second but he lacked the drive to gain in the last sprint. Jerry Guttormsen of Kenosha, Wis., who had been in eleventh position at the mile, came in third.

Lee Gives Exhibition.

The exhibition by Robin Lee, national men's figure skating champion, was a high light of the program. Despite the soft ice Lee went through a routine that brought applause from the throng. The Chicago Figure Skating club members appeared twice, first in a waltz, which opened the program, and then in a fourteen step, at the conclusion.

Heckenbach's victory assured the Northwest Skating club of the team championship, although the final disposition of points was not known until a protest had been considered in the championship one mile race for the Senior girls. Northwest S. C. scored 390 points with the Catholic Youth Organization second with 320 points.

Northwest Takes Trophy.

The Northwest skaters won the Walter E. Eckersall memorial team trophy which had been defended by the C. Y. O. It was the second victory since 1931 for the boys and girls coached by Bill Beck and now they are tied with the C. Y. O. team with two victories each. Should either of these teams win the 1939 Derbies, the Eckersall trophy will become the permanent possession of that organization.

The Girls' Senior one mile championship races ended in the first disqualification in 21 years of Silver Skates history. Genevieve Swierkos of the C. Y. O. and Shirley Jameson of the Northwest club skated around the sixth and last lap of the Derby fighting for the lead. Miss Jameson was protecting a slight advantage, hugging the rail. Miss Swierkos was close behind, so close, in fact, that when both girls fell on the turn into the stretch, Genevieve eventually was disqualified.

Finishes, but Is Disqualified.

Genevieve managed to regain her feet to cross the finish line first, although disqualification cost her the points she thought she had scored for the C. Y. O. and the pair of Silver

ONLY 2 WEEKS LEFT TO ENTER GOLDEN GLOVES

First Sectional Meet at Madison Club.

Although three weeks remain in which to marshal Chicago's Golden Gloves army in preparation for four sectional tournaments, amateur boxers wishing to compete in the eleventh tournament sponsored by The Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., are allotted only two weeks in which to file their entries.

If you wish to enter the Novice tournament or the Open tournament your letter of application must be mailed before midnight Jan. 30. The first of the four sectional tournaments starts Feb. 9 at the Madison Athletic club.

At a conference of officials and physicians yesterday, it was agreed that only four physical examinations for contestants will be held unless, of course, the entry lists exceed those of last year by several hundred. The first of these examinations will be Friday night at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. Letters to these contestants notifying them of the location and the time of the examination [6 p. m. to 8 p. m.] will be mailed tomorrow.

C. Y. O. Boxers Next on List.

The second physical examination is scheduled for boxers belonging to the Catholic Youth organization. It will be Monday night at the C. Y. O. gymnasium, 31 East Congress street.

At these two physical examinations, boxers may choose the sectional tournament in which they wish to compete.

The west side tournament will be held Feb. 9 and 10 at the Madison A. C., 4711 West Madison street. It will continue the following week at the Park casino, Madison street and Hamlin avenue. These two sites comprise one tournament.

Four Teams to Be Named.

Other tournaments will be held at the Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace streets, for the northwest; at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, for the south side; and at Loyola university gymnasium, Sheridan road and Loyola avenue, for the north side.

From these tournaments Chicago will have four championship teams of eight boxers each to enter the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 28, March 1 and 2.

From the Novice tournaments, thirty-two boys, each a winner of a qualifying medal, will enter the semi-finals of the Chicago meet at the Stadium March 1. They do not compete against the out of town champions.

Finals on March 2.

The finals of the Chicago Novice tournament will be held March 2. Each Chicago champion receives a golden glove, without a diamond, and the runner-up receives a silver glove.

The major prizes, golden gloves set with a diamond, are awarded at the championships March 11 at the Stadium. These eight champions of 1938 then meet New York's champions while eight other Open division boxers from the Tournament of Champions also will box in New York's Madison Square Garden on March 21. Thirty-two boys will be taken on the Chicago squad to New York.

MOON MULLINS—ONE OF LOVE'S OBSTACLES

WINGS, MAROONS TIE, 1-1; LEWIS, TROTTIER SCORE

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Maroons battled to a 1 to 1 tie in a National Hocky league game before 8,000 tonight. It was their second deadlock in two nights.

Herbie Lewis put Detroit in the lead after six minutes of play in the first period, but the Maroons tied it up three and a half minutes later as Dave Trottier fired successfully from an almost impossible angle at right wing. Lineups:

Maccabees Win Overtime Cup Game, 2-0

BY OFFSIDE.

The Maccabees, held scoreless for the regulation ninety minutes, scored two goals in a thirty minute overtime period to defeat the American Nickeloids of Peru, Ill., 2 to 0, yesterday at Kuppenheimer stadium in a first round proper national cup match.

Playing on a muddy field, the Maccabees were held in check throughout a fast first period by the brilliant goal tending of Louis Faletti. The second half found the Nickeloids forced back on the defensive, and it was only through the efforts of Faletti and his two backs that the Maccabees were held scoreless and the game forced into overtime.

The Maccabees gained a 1 to 0 lead three minutes after the overtime period had opened as Lillie took Cuthburt's pass, slipped past Balestri and beat Faletti. The second goal came twelve minutes later, Thomson driving a low shot into the net from eighteen yards out.

RONCHETTI WINS TEN THOUSAND LAKES TITLE

Minneapolis, Minn., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Vic Ronchetti, Chicago Tribune Silver Skates champion in 1937, today won the senior men's championship of the Ten Thousan.. Lakes skating meet in which four outdoor world marks were broken. Ronchetti scored 130 points in the two day event to win the Governor Elmer Benson trophy. Frank Stack, Sudbury, Ont., was second with 100 points.

LELLO BATTLES SIMINGTON; 27TH VICTORY IS GOAL

Missourian Promises Pete a Battle Tonight.

Pete Lello, former Golden Gloves champion who has scored twenty-six victories in twenty-nine professional appearances, will resume competition for additional lightweight honors in a ten round bout with Everett Simington of Poplar Bluff, Mo., at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight.

Pete will risk his record against a strong foe in Simington. Everett's accomplishments include triumphs over George Van Der Hayden Dec. 13, Ray Sharkey Nov. 8, and Al Manriquez Oct. 25.

In the five round semi-final Tom Kenneally, 1934 Catholic Youth organization heavyweight title holder, will compete against Jack Fargo of Winnetka. Alex Kettles, also a Golden Gloves product, will encounter Willie Lewis, tall southpaw from the south side, in one of three bouts at four rounds. Lewis defeated Jack Pumphrey Nov. 15, an achievement worthy of mention.

Fritz von Schacht, German heavyweight wrestler, will attempt to continue his successful Chicago campaign at the expense of Jim McMillen in a one hour encounter this evening at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue.

Mike Jacobs, Madison Square Garden promoter, has opened negotiations for a welterweight championship bout between Barney Ross and Challenger Henry Armstrong, but such a contest is unlikely to be closed because Sam Pian, co-manager with Art Winch of the champion, demands that Armstrong first eliminate Davey Day.

SOX ROSTER IS OUT; THERE'S A MR. DYKES ON IT

33 Men Will Go to Camp at Pasadena.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The White Sox 1938 roster, edited and designed by Traveling Secretary Joe Barry, was put into circulation yesterday. In his search for data on the athletes remaining from last season and those collected during the fall Uncle Joe discovered that 33 men will be eligible for the training trip party, which will begin at Pasadena, Cal., March 3.

Indicating a somewhat speedy turnover of talent by that artful trader, Manager Jim Dykes, the revised roster shows only 18 fellows who wore white hose either for a good portion or all of last season. Of the fifteen others a few had the customary cup of coffee in the Sox camp last spring and a couple are entire strangers to Chicago flannels, although well known in the American league. They are Third Baseman Marvin Owen and Outfielder Jerry Walker, the former Tigers.

Eight Veteran Hurlers Listed.

Eight of last year's pitching staf survive and even if only six of these produce Manager Dykes should be able to enjoy a pleasant summer despite his leg infirmities. However, he is going to keep his eye on the rookies, particularly Bill Cox, who, after being called in from the St. Paul club late last season, proved he has unusual big league possibilities.

The other kid pitchers such as George Gick from the Rayne, La., club, Bob Uhle from Dallas, Jess Dobernic from Rayne, Walter Zuehls, University of Wisconsin, and Frank Cook, an independent, are of the type who need more experience.

A Mr. Dykes Is Listed.

Mr. Dykes has himself listed among the infielders who expect to work during the season, but he hardly will be needed except as a boss unless Zeke Bonura should pull another protracted holdout ac.. In that event Dykes will groom himself for first base, leaving second base to Jack Hayes, shortstop to Luke Appling, and third to Owen.

Dykes already has decided that his regular outfield from left to right will be Jerry Walker, Larry Rosenthal, and Mike Kreevich. Rip Radcliff, who hit .325 last season, may cause the altering of this arrangement. Two other fly chasers fighting for recognition will be Henry Steinbacher, who was present last spring, and Rupert Thompson, drafted from the San Diego, Cal., club.

Regulars Report March 9.

The makeup of the first squad which will report March 3 has not been decided upon, but probably will include all the pitchers and catchers and rookies. The regulars have been ordered to be in camp ready for muscle stretching on March 9. The roster follows:

PITCHERS—Ted Lyons, Clint Brown, John Whitehead, Monty Stratton, John Rigney, Bill Dietrich, Merritt Cain, Thornton Lee, Bill Cox, George Gick, Bob Uhle, Frank Cook, Jess Dobernic, Walter Zuehls.

CATCHERS—Luke Sewell, Tony Ramos, Norman Schlueter, William Finneran, Mike Tresh.

INFIELDERS—James Dykes, Luke Appling, Jack Hayes, Zeke Bonura, Marvin Owen, Louis Berger, Jesse Landrum, William Martin.

Sam Snead's 139 Wins in Crosby Golf

Delmar, Cal., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Sam Snead walked away with the $3,000 Bing Crosby golf tournament today for the second straight year.

The long hitter from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., shot a 36-hole score of 139, set a new course record of 67 on the final round today, five shots under par, and pocketed most of the money put up by Movie Star Crosby.

Snead won $500 first prize money in the professional competition, and paired with Doug McKinnon, Los Angeles, won second place money of $225 in the pro-amateur battle. Art Bell, Pasadena pro, and Phil Finlay, Redlands, Cal., won first place in the pro-amateur event with a total score of 67—67—134, one stroke in front of Snead and McKinnon.

Hines Two Strokes Back.

Two strokes back of Snead in the pro event was Jimmy Hines, Garden City, N. Y., while Jimmy Demaret, Houston, Tex., finished with 142 after shooting a 68 yesterday. Hines won $350 and Demaret $250.

Crosby and Partner Get 144.

Crosby and his pro partner, Harold Sampson, San Francisco, shot 71—73—144, and another film celebrity, Guy Kibbee, paired with Harry Bassler, Long Beach, took 80—77—157. George Murphy and John Bulla, Chicago, shot 70—74—144, and Johnny Weismuller and Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., came in with 76—73—149.

Trailing behind the leaders in the pro event were Horton Smith, Chicago, 73—70—143, and Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., 72—71—143; Willie Hunter, Santa Monica, and Al Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., with 144, and Ben Hogan, Fort Worth, 145.

Artillery Quintet Rallies to Beat Acme Steel, 41-34

The 124th Field Artillery, Central A. A. U. basketball champion, defeated Acme Steel, commercial title holder, 41 to 34, yesterday at the 124th armory. Al Gilmour led the Armory with sixteen points. Trailing, 21 to 14, at the half, the Artillery rallied in the last few minutes to win. The Calumet K. of C. beat Cardinal K of C., 40 to 34, in a second game on the card.

Heckenbach Is Senior Silver Skates Winner

Skates. Miss Jameson crossed the line in fourth place, but the disqualification moved her to third place, while Helen Swierkos, Genevieve's sister, who was skating for the Olympic club, received first prize.

Formal protest was filed by Coach William Beck of the Northwest club when Miss Jameson fell. He claimed that she was crowded on the turn. After the championship races, the inspectors of the course were interviewed by Gen. John V. Clinnin, referee of the meet, and his decision disqualified Genevieve Swierkos on basis of evidence given.

Horn Leads Intermediates.

Edward Koeller of the Olympic club won the lap prize in the boys' intermediate championship event, but Robert Horn of the Northwest S. C. was the victor in 3 minutes 6 8-10 seconds, excellent time considering the soft ice. Walter Baron, Horn's teammate, came in second.

Horn of the Northwest club coasted out sixth at the start and stayed in that position until there were two laps to go, when he moved up to the front and dashed away from the field to win by three strides.

John Andruch of Tilden Tech won the Boys' Junior event. He started out in second place, holding on until the final lap, when he passed his teammate, Ronald Berg, who finished second. The Aurora entry, Junior Stiefbolt, who finished third, broke in front at the start, but he dropped back when Andruch and Berg spurted.

Veronica Shows Speed.

Veronica Leonard of C. Y. O. took the lead at the start of the Girls' Intermediate and, outside of one lap, the third, was in front. Marilyn Miller of the Olympic club was third throughout the race, but caught up in the back stretch to beat out Bunny Lawler to come in second. Janet Dennis of Cedar Rapids, Ia., finished fourth and her home town club member, Barbara Shepard, fell with two laps to go, but continued to finish fifth.

Shirley Klaris of the C. Y. O. and Shirley Jane Burnett of the Northwest club battled for first place in the Girls' Junior. Miss Burnett spurted to pull away and she won by twenty-five yards.

RENEGADE FOX AIDS AND TAKES FROM FARMERS

Criticism Heard of State for Outlawing Animal.

BY BOB BECKER.

Sheriff Albert J. Kampmeyer of Kane county, who offered to pay fox bounties out of his own pocket when the board of supervisors tabled a resolution providing county payment, recently paid the third bounty of the season. This payment ran his personal fox bounty expense account to $7.50. The sheriff has placed a $2.50 price on the head of full grown foxes, and $1.50 on young ones.

Kane county's regard of the fox is quite typical of the status of the animal in most parts of the state. Old Reynard is being kept on the run by hunters and is given but little protection by any outdoor group. Ever since the new state game code made it legal in central and northern Illinois to hunt foxes from one year's end to the other the animals have been getting little rest from either dogs or hunters.

Stamped as Renegade.

The code stamped the fox as a renegade when it specified in article 2, section 8, that "foxes may be taken from Jan. 1 to Dec. 31, both inclusive," in both the central and northern zones of Illinois. This means that in the upper two-thirds of the state of Illinois the fox is an outlaw and may be killed any time.

The status of the fox as established by the Illinois game code is bitterly criticized by those who believe this crafty animal more than pays for its keep by killing vermin on farm lands and deserves protection. Probably the best appraisal of the relationship between the fox and the farmer [whose poultry the fox will kill] is expressed by Stone and Cram, two well known American mammalogists.

Both Farmer, Fox Benefit.

"Although the farmer and the fox are such inveterate enemies, they manage to benefit each other in a great many ways, always quite unintentionally.

"The fox destroys numberless field mice and woodchucks for the farmer and in return the farmer supplies him with poultry and builds convenient bridges over streams and wet places which the fox crosses oftener than the farmer, for he is as sensitive as a cat about getting his feet wet."

On the Yorkville experimental farm workers have seen foxes steal very young pigs. Around a den located on the farm workers found signs of pheasants having been killed by the animals and brought to the den to be fed to the young.

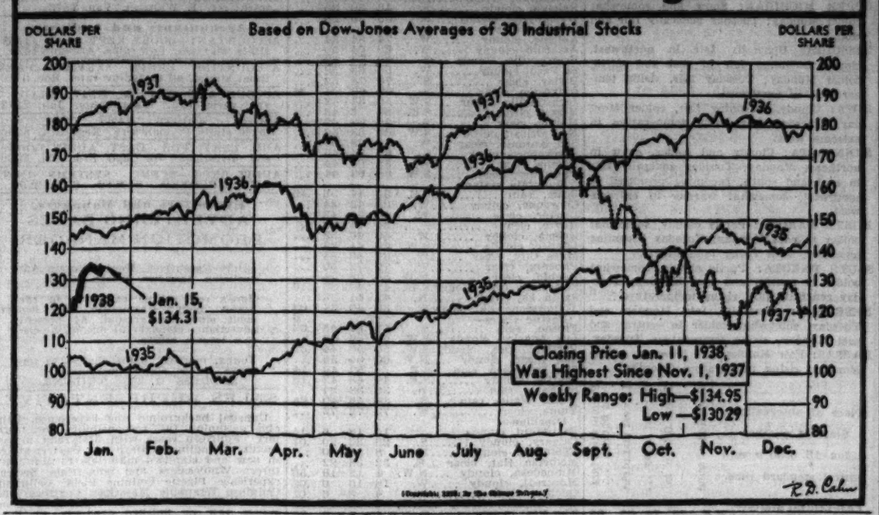
NEWS OF FINANCIAL AND GRAIN MARKETS

Average Daily Closing Prices of 30 Leading Industrial Stocks on the New York Stock Exchange



More Firms' Officials Cut Stock Holdings

Some additional selling by corporation officials of securities in their own companies was shown yesterday in the Securities and Exchange commission's second and final report of November transactions. The first showed more selling than buying.

E. F. McDonald Jr.

Kelly Disposes of Stock.

D. F. Kelly, who announced recently that he will retire April 26 as president of The Fair, disposed of 700 common shares, reducing his holdings to 1,000 shares.

C. E. Wickman, Chicago, president of the Greyhound corporation, indirectly disposed of 18,434 Greyhound common shares through a holding company, and increased his personal holdings by 1,487 shares. This reduced the shares held by the holding company to 28,711 shares, and increased Wickman's personal holdings to 34,967 shares.

F. A. Vanderlip Jr., New York, reported the disposal of his entire common stock holdings in both Bar-

National Malleable and Steel.

Investors' Guide: Please send me available information on National Malleable and Steel.—P. H. J.

Answer: National Malleable and Steel Castings company produces a wide variety of alloy iron, castings of malleable iron, white iron, steel, and special alloy materials used in the production of automobiles and railroad cars. The company has helped develop automatic railroad car couplers standard on railroads of the United States.

Business of this company expanded rapidly during 1936 and most of 1937 because of heavier demand for railroad equipment and larger production of automobiles. In 39 weeks ended Oct. 2, 1937, net income was $2,329,789, or $4.93 a common share, ecmpared with net income of $1,054,211, or $2.23 a share, in the 39 weeks ended Sept. 30, 1936. Earnings in recent years:

1936	$14,033,453	$ 1,130,409	$2.39
1934	8,090,902	†275,270	†0.58
1931	[*]	†1,884,957	†3.99
1929	[*]	1,482,421	3.16

[*] Not reported; †Deficit.

The company has 472,461 shares of no par common stock outstanding on which dividends of $2 a share were paid in 1937. A like amount was paid in 1936. The company maintains a strong current position.

In view of uncertainties in the general business outlook, the stock must be regarded as somewhat speculative.

Personal Property Tax.

Investors' Guide: Are government bonds, including United States Savings bonds and postal savings certificates exempt from all taxes, including personal property tax?—Mrs. C. P.

Answer: Government obligations are exempt from all taxes except surtax on large incomes, excess profits tax, estate or inheritance taxes, and gift taxes. A few issues also are exempt from surtax and excess profits tax. The exemption, of course, extends to personal property taxes levied by the various states.

National Mortgage.

Investors' Guide: Can you tell me whether the National Mortgage corporation is registered at Springfield, Ill.?—F. A. M.

Answer: The name of National Mortgage corporation, Rock Island, Ill., is contained in the certified list of Illinois corporations for 1937.

THREE ARE ADMITTED BY FREY ADVERTISING AGENCY AS PARTNERS

Ashley Belbin, Lorry R. Northrup, and Arthur B. Sullivan will become partners in the Charles Daniel Frey company, Chicago advertising agency, effective today. They join the two present partners, C. D. Frey and R. L. Hurst, who became a partner last month.

Ashley Belbin.

Belbin has been with the advertising firm of Blackett-Sample-Hummert, Inc. He formerly was advertising manager for Alfred A. Knopf, publisher.

Northrup has been general manager of the Charles Daniel Frey company for the last three years, and Sullivan has been director of production for six years. Northrup previously headed marketing and research for Erwin, Wasey & Co. Sullivan formerly was with N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia.

$913,030 PROFIT IN '37 REPORTED BY SUPERPOWER

Adams Express Co.'s Net Assets Drop.

The American Superpower corporation, holding company for securities of electric utilities, yesterday reported net investment income for 1937 of $913,030, or $5.01 a share on 182,300 first preferred shares, compared with investment income in 1936 of $892,023, or $4.27 a preferred share on 208,879 shares. Profit on sale of securities in 1937 was $8,688, for which a comparative 1936 figure was not available.

The 1937 income, including profit from securities sales, fell $240,121 short of equaling first preferred dividend requirements, which were paid in full.

Net Assets Decline.

Net assets at market values at the end of 1937 were $26,344,641, equivalent to $35.12 a preference share, compared with net assets a year earlier of $46,313,000 or $108.09 a preference share. On Dec. 31, 1937, common stocks were carried at $24,234,499, represented by cost of $81,323,857 less reserve for decline in market value of $57,086,358.

Dividend arrears on the $6 preference stock on Dec. 31, 1937, amounted to $34.50 a share. At the end of 1937 the corporation had cash of $1,315,285.

Adams Express Assets Dro-

Heavy liquidation of share holdings and a decline in the net asset value of the portfolio to $11.61 a share on its common stock at the end of 1937 compared with $22.84 at the close of 1936 were shown yesterday in the annual report of the Adams Express company, an investment organization.

The market value of securities held was placed at $19,622,878 against $47,800,689 at the end of 1936 and total assets dropped to $44,470,520 from $57,880,997.

Stocks Rise, but Trading Pace Eases During Week; Bonds Up

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 16.—[Special.]—With trade news a little more favorable but investors watching the legislative outlook for some sign as to whether or not the Roosevelt administration's "big stick" attitude toward business is to be modified, the stock market strengthened last week but trading moved at a slower pace.

In the bond market also there was broad improvement, although several rail liens, especially Baltimore & Ohio and Erie issues, were heavily sold at lower prices. United States government bonds continued their month long rise.

Up, Down, and Up Again.

In the stock market the French political-monetary troubles caused share prices to react temporarily. The market was strong Monday, turned irregular Tuesday, remained weak the next two days, and then moved up spiritedly Friday and Saturday.

Fifty industrial stocks, as measured by the Dow-Jones averages, ended the week with a gain of 3.47 points at 34.91, near the week's high. The rail average gained more than a point, despite the weak spots. The utilities average slipped half a point.

Stocks which attracted attention in the rise included Chrysler, General Motors, Yellow Truck, United States Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Curtiss Wright, United States Rubber, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, and Pullman.

Gains Range to 6 Points.

In the six days thirteen stocks fell to new lows and five reached new highs. Gains ranged from fractions to more than 6 points.

Among the week's news developments studied by investors and traders was President Roosevelt's proposal to abolish all holding companies, but Wall street circles were not inclined to worry. They doubted, for instance, that such firms as American Telephone and Telegraph and General Electric would be targets of any such crusade at this time. Armament talk influenced shares that would benefit from war purchases.

Wheat Prices Affected by Fear of Drouth

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The prospective yield of the 1938 wheat crop is beginning to exert an influence on prices in the Chicago market. Last week's report by the department of agriculture telling of drouth conditions prevailing over a wide area in the winter wheat producing belt pointed up the 1938 harvest outlook as a market factor.

The government's report said that conditions prevailing in some sections of the wheat belt are comparable to 1934 and 1936 when drouth cut wheat production well below normal domestic consumption. The possibility of a repetition of a wheat crop failure this year thus appears as a definite price factor.

Seeded Acreage Large.

The acreage seeded to winter wheat last fall—approximately 57,000,000 acres—was about the same as in 1937. The area is much larger than the acreage seeded in recent years. On the basis of acreage alone another good crop is in sight this season. Anything approaching the drouth of either 1934 or 1936, however, would ruin the chances of a reasonably large yield for the country as a whole.

The department of agriculture emphasized in its discussion of the outlook that adequate rainfall in the coming months would remove the danger of serious crop damage.

Kansas, Nebraska Dry.

Kansas and Nebraska were cited as areas where the winter crop outlook is unpromising at the present time. Other wheat states listed with below normal rainfall from September through December were Colorado, Oklahoma, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Missouri, Minnesota, and Illinois. South Dakota had only 54 per cent of its normal rainfall during the period, Iowa, 56 per cent, and Kansas, 65 per cent.

Dust storms were reported recently in the southwestern wheat states, adding emphasis to the government

Credit Unions.

A credit union is a cooperative savings and loan association operated for the benefit of employés of a corporation who may voluntarily become members. Although its existence is approved by the company, which in some cases furnishes office space and even clerical help, the union is a separate entity from the firm whose employés it serves.

The credit union serves as a depositary for small savings of its members. They receive dividends on their deposits and may borrow money for relatively short periods at reasonable interest rates. Interest charges on unpaid balances usually run about one per cent a month. By encouraging thrift and providing a system for paying debts on a businesslike basis, the credit union has helped relieve employers of the problem of wage garnishments and attachments.

Congress passed the federal credit union act in 1934. As a result, charters may be obtained through the federal government for a union in any of the 48 states. In addition, state charters are available in a number of states. Total credit union membership is now estimated at 1,250,000 and total resources at $60,000,000. The credit union movement in this country was founded by the late E. A. Filene, Boston merchant and philanthropist.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Lamb Time.

January 16, 1938.

LAMBS—Big lambs and little lambs—keep the flockmaster hopping day and night at the Wheaton farm. Intermissions are not even on his calendar—there are lambs coming and lambs going. Midwinter lambs are being born almost daily, while the 1937 crop of lambs gradually is being taken away to market.

Ten more lambs have been born since Sunday, making a total of fifteen from ten ewes. There are nine females and six males. All are healthy and well developed. The production of extremely early lambs is not a practice at the farm, but the flockmaster, who has handled sheep for many years, says he has never seen thriftier lambs. He expects to save them all, despite the fact that they are being born under stormy winter weather conditions.

Exercise Helps.

Much of the success with the new midwinter lambs is credited to the fact that the ewes had plenty of exercise. The fall and early winter weather has been favorable. There has been little snow, making it possible for the ewes to spend most of their daylight hours in the timbered and open pastures until the lambs were born. This has kept them in good health and they are in excellent condition for nursing their lambs.

Eighty-one more lambs of last year's crop were sold on the Chicago market last Thursday. There was strong competition among buyers for the lambs because they were carrying a fine finish and were of the light weight so popular among butchers who want reasonably small cuts to meet consumer demand.

The eighty-one lambs averaged a little under eighty pounds, or a total of 6,450 pounds. They brought $9 a hundredweight, or a gross return of $580.50. The net return totaled $554.79 after deducting $25.71 to cover marketing costs. These costs were made up of fire insurance, 13 cents; yardage, $13.77; commission, $11.65, and meat board fund, 16 cents.

141 Go to Market.

The eighty-one sold last week make a total of 141 lambs marketed from last year's crop. The first truckload of thirty-three was sold the early part of December. They averaged slightly more than 78 pounds and brought $9.35 a hundred pounds. The second shipment of twenty-seven head was sold about the middle of December. They averaged nearly 82 pounds and brought $9.60 a hundredweight.

Lambs on the Chicago market were approximately $1 a hundred higher when the first shipment was sold and $1.25 higher when the second bunch was marketed than they were last week when the third lot was sold.

There still are 55 lambs of the 1937 crop on feed at the farm. These will be ready for market in a short time.

In finishing the lambs they have been given all the molasses they will eat. The molasses is credited with having aided in putting on rapid gains and a good finish.

DWELLING UNIT COST IS SET AT $3,549 BY PWA

Washington, D. C., Jan. 16.—(AP)—The average cost of dwelling units in thirteen Public Works administration housing projects was less than that of comparable private construction, the bureau of labor statistics said in a report made public by PWA today.

The bureau reported the average construction cost per dwelling unit was $3,549, and the average cost per room was $979.

Final Arguments in Oil Trial May Start Today

Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—(AP)—Unless directed verdicts of acquittal are ordered, government prosecutors and defense attorneys in the trial of gasoline price fixing charges against 16 major oil companies—biggest antitrust action of recent years—will start their final arguments before the jury in federal court here tomorrow.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

PICKET AND COUNTER PICKET MARCH TOGETHER—Scene outside a St. Louis store yesterday after the owner hired a colored woman dressed as bride and carrying "Just Married" sign to walk beside union agent. All day long they paced, he with his umbrella and she with her sign. The man failed to show any embarrassment. (Story on page 1.)

WHERE FIVE CONVICTS ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE OVER WALL—Photodiagram of state penitentiary at Joliet, marking events of attempted break. Dotted line shows prisoners' path. 1. Where William Yoho was captured. 2. Donald Loftus, the leader, was shot and fell here, near where prisoners climbed wall. 3. Peter Ristich sprained ankle here as he jumped. 4. Where Harry Gerken was shot on top of wall. 5. Edward Rabalais stayed here inside wall when shooting began. [TRIBUNE Photo.] (Story on page 1.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

LITA GREY CHAPLIN AND FUTURE HUSBAND—The former wife of Charles Chaplin with Arthur F. Day Jr., her manager, in Kansas City yesterday. The singer said she would wed Day in July, probably in Europe. (Story on page 3.)

[Acme Photo.]

SOME TOUGH SLEDDING FOR THE JAP INVADERS—Nipponese soldiers transporting ice on an improvised sled to melt for drinking water. They were operating in the Tientsin area, where fleeing Chinese flooded the land to hamper foes. Tokio yesterday ordered her envoys to seek approval abroad for her policy in China. (Story on page 2.)

SOARS HIGH OVER SKI CLUB CROWD—Sigmund Ruud of Norway leaping at Norge hill, Fox River Grove, yesterday in international tournament. He was second in the competition, yielding first place to his brother, Birger.
